Senator Giving Government Back $313,000

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freshman Sen. Edward Zorinsky, saying too many people in Washington feel comfortable spending other people's money, is returning to the government $313,016 in unspent office funds. "I feel like one drop in a bucket helps," said Zorinsky, a Nebraska Democrat, whose unused funds will revert to the treasury on Sept. 30, when the current fiscal year ends. "Sometimes a bucket can get filled if enough drops fall into it," he said in a telephone interview today. Zorinsky, who has been in office only nine months of the fiscal year, said he would be returning more money to the treasury if he had been in the Senate for the entire fiscal year. He said he simply didn't spend all of his appropriation for administrative aide salaries as well as money provided for such items as telephones, travel, stationery and other office expenses. In addition, the senator is vowing to make his 19 staff workers earn the 7.5 per cent pay raise that will automatically be given to thousands of other federal employees in October. Zorinsky, who serves on the Agriculture and Commerce Committee, also refused to use $139,278 authorized for hiring committee aides. "The taxpayers can no longer afford to pay for all the services the federal government wants to provide for them," said Zorinsky, who winces at the thought of being dubbed a crusader. The senator admits, however, that his tight-fisted spending policies have caused a stir among some colleagues. "Some of them have referred to it jokingly," Zorinsky said, without naming names. "But I haven't encountered any animosity."

Zorinsky said he is determined to spend tax money only when the benefit justifies the expense. "I was brought up in business to believe you award raises on the basis of services performed," said the senator of his plans to hold the line on staff pay raises. Zorinsky said his particularly deserving employees may get more than the 7.5 per cent pay hike, while others may get no raise at all. He said he continually evaluates the work of his 13 office employees in Washington and six in Nebraska.

Does he feel like a fiscal Lame Ranger? "Not at all,"

Zorinsky said. "I just feel that I want to be sure I'm not wasting the taxpayers' money." Not a single constituent has complained about Zorinsky's failure to spend all of the money allocated to his office, he said. "In fact," said Zorinsky, the former mayor of Omaha, "I've received several letters from people saying, 'We wish there were more like you in Washington.'"

Lance Admits 'Mistakes' But Denies Coverup

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance told Senate interrogators today he may have made mistakes in running his Georgia banks but allegations about his financial past have been "erroneous ... misrepresented ... exaggerated and ... misunderstood."

"I do not contend that I made no mistakes when running these banks," Lance said in his opening statement to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

"But to accept the assertion that I could not even manage a small country bank, one must ignore the objective facts," he said.

"Some of the claims are erroneous, some are misrepresented, some are exaggerated and some are completely misunderstood because those making the charge do not have all the facts," Lance said.

The committee, which recommended Lance's confirmation in January, is investigating allegations arising from Lance's activities with the Calhoun First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., of which he was board chairman, and the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta, which he served as president.

Lance told the committee that although his discussions with the staff in January "did not include a microscopic review of my affairs," he answered fully and accurately all questions and did not engage in any cover-up.

In regard to loans which he received from banks with which his own banks had special relationships, he said, "in no instance was there a finding that the terms of my loans were more favorable" because of the business ties.

Lance vigorously denied that he backdated any checks to allow him to take income tax deductions for 1976, a possibility suggested in a line of questioning last Friday by Illinois Sen. Charles Percy, ranking Republican on the committee.

"I deeply regret that Sen. Percy felt it in act in this regrettable matter in making a charge which has no merit whatsoever," he said.

He said checks numbered 919 through 921 in his checkbook were dated prior to checks 917 and 918 because the smaller numbered checks had been removed from the book while blank and kept in his briefcase for possible use later.

"I frequently tear out checks from the checkbook in this matter, so that I will have checks with me when I need them," he said.

"Thus did Lance begin the 'day in court,' which he had said he so eagerly awaited. Earlier, he had declared his spirits high and his determination undiminished as he headed into the arena of his Senate critics and a future as clouded as his past activities have appeared in the panel's week-old hearing.

Turning to criticism of large overdrafts allowed him and members of his family by the Calhoun bank, Lance said:

"The Calhoun First National Bank for years followed a liberal policy with respect to overdrafts. I make no apology for this practice. It was believed by the bank's management that a liberal overdraft policy was a valuable tool for the bank to use in attracting and retaining customers ... members of the Lance family were not accorded special favors regarding overdrafts. The liberal overdraft policy of the bank was available to all depositors."

Lance told the committee that "no evidence" had been offered to support suggestions that he used his relationship with President Carter to exert improper influences on decisions of the U.S. attorney's office in Atlanta to drop an investigation into possible violations arising from the financing of his 1974 gubernatorial campaign.

He said the same applied to suggestions that he had used influence to bring about the lifting of restrictions placed on

Lottery Game Daily Winner

DETROIT (AP) — The winning number in Wednesday's daily Michigan Lottery game is zero-seven-four (074).

He Has Midas Touch

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man who won the first million-dollar prize in the Michigan Lottery has struck payday again.

Hermus Millsaps, 57, of Taylor, bought a lottery ticket Tuesday, the first day of the state's new three-of-a-kind game.

It turned out to be worth $1,000.

That's peanuts to Millsaps, who gets $50,000 a year because he won $1 million in the state's first lottery millionaire drawing in February 1973.

"Give my best to (state lottery director) Gus Harrison," Millsaps told lottery officials after his latest prize.

Millsaps said he bought the $1,000 ticket at a donut shop in Taylor and redeemed it Wednesday in Oak Park.

He was earning $4.57 an hour at a Chrysler plant when he won the million-dollar prize four years ago. Millsaps spends his time now traveling, working in his garden or on his house, which is the same one he owned when he became a millionaire.

He and his wife, Ann, have five children.

Millsaps says he spends about $200 a year on lottery tickets and his winnings average $17 or $18 annually.

exact cause of death.

Chief Williams credited the Cass county sheriff's office and prosecutor's office with assistance in the arrest of Doyle whose home is located a short distance from the murdered woman's.

According to Cass district court records, Doyle was convicted of aggravated assault against Mrs. Lucas in December, 1975. He served a term of 30 days in the county jail and paid a fine and costs of $179. The court indicated Doyle had originally been charged with armed robbery in the case.

Mrs. Lucas' daughter, Lydia, was Miss Cassopolis in the 1974 Blossomtime competition.

It was the second murder in the county in as many days. Terry Lindsey, Edwardburg, was fatally shot Tuesday night. Another Edwardburg man, Lonnie Webb, was arrested and booked on an open murder charge in connection with that shooting.

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Lucas were incomplete this morning at the Connelly funeral home, Cassopolis.

LANCE RALLY: Residents of Calhoun, Ga., hometown of Bert Lance, held a rally in support of the budget director Wednesday evening. Lance is appearing before the Senate committee investigating his financial affairs in Washington today. The rally, in the words of one participant, was: "to let the people now that Lance is not a crook." (AP Wirephoto)

Ex-Assailant Held In Woman's Death

CASSOPOLIS — Mrs. Catherine Lucas, 56, mother of this community's 1974 Blossom queen, was found slain in the bedroom of her home here Wednesday morning.

The county prosecutor's office said a man convicted of aggravated assault against Mrs. Lucas in 1975, was taken into custody and booked on an open charge of murder.

The man was identified by Cassopolis police as Perry Doyle, 23, 500 O'Keefe street, Cassopolis.

No motive had been established yet in the slaying.

Police said Mrs. Lucas' body was found in the bedroom of her home at 111 East Harding about 11:30 a.m. by Sgt. Richard Ivens and Chief Frank Williams, Jr. They forced their way into the house after Mrs. Lucas' mother said she was unable to gain entry to the house on her arrival from Chicago the day before, police reported.

Doyle, 500 South O'Keefe street, was booked at the Cass county jail after his arrest about 6 o'clock last night. He was being held without bond pending arraignment in Cass Fourth District court sometime today.

Police at the scene yesterday indicated Mrs. Lucas appeared to have been dead for several days. Cass Prosecutor William Gritmaker said it appeared there were slashes about her neck and face. He said an autopsy was to be held today to determine the

Child Porn Crackdown Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee is recommending tough new legislation to prohibit the use of children in the burgeoning, multimillion-dollar pornography business. Decriing the sexual exploitation of children, members of the panel voted unanimously Tuesday to make it a federal crime to use a person under age 18 in the production of pornographic material. The committee recommended legislation to the Senate that also would bar the interstate transportation of any child, boy or girl, for the purpose of prostitution.

Troopers Get Pair With 1978 Lincoln

NEW BUFFALO — State police at New Buffalo seized a 1978 Lincoln Continental reported

ed stolen in Wisconsin and arrested two men about 4:45 a.m. this morning in the eastbound lane of I-94 in Chikaming township.

Troopers said a LEIN computer check showed one of the men — Nathaniel Leon Smart, 36, of St. Louis, Mo. — has a record in other states of five felony convictions and 15 other felony arrests including homicide.

Also arrested was Jessie Jones, 47, of Milwaukee, Wis. Troopers said both were booked into the Berrien county jail on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100.

Dealers began delivery on 1978 Lincolns two weeks ago.

The Lincoln was reported stolen Tuesday from a Wauwatese, Wis., dealership where Smart was a temporary employee. The 1978 Lincolns were introduced two weeks ago.

Troopers Robert DenHouten and James Kroll, who were riding together in the same patrol car, said they first spotted the Lincoln pulled over to the side of the highway.

The officers said they stopped to investigate, and two men in the car told them they had run out of gas.

The officers made a LEIN computer check and learned the car had been reported stolen from Uptown Lincoln-Mercury in Wauwatosa, a suburb of Milwaukee. The check also showed that Smart was being sought by Wauwatosa authorities on a charge of auto theft.

Jr. league bowling begins this Sat., 9-17, Blossom Lanes for all groups. Adv.

Newspaper Sues U-M Regents

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Ann Arbor News has filed suit against the University of Michigan, charging the school's Board of Regents hold closed meetings.

The suit, filed Wednesday in Washtenaw County Circuit Court, seeks a restraining order to prevent the U-M's governing board from holding closed meetings in the future.

It also asks the court to declare unconstitutional a section of the state Freedom of Information Act that allows public bodies to withhold certain documents that are "an unwarranted invasion of privacy."

The suit notes that the regents were scheduled to hold their monthly meeting today and Friday, and asks for an immediate hearing.

A U-M spokesman had no immediate comment on the court action.

The News' suit charges that the regents hold closed meetings, where they discuss salaries, promotions, faculty appointments and the state law prohibiting closed meetings.

The Open Meetings Act provides for legal action against a public body that may be violating it. The law went into effect April 1.

The newspaper's suit contends the regents, by their actions, are enhancing the use of secret meetings for other public groups, and challenges provisions in the Freedom of Information Act allowing certain information to be withheld as violations of the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

Because "an actual controversy" exists between the regents and the News on the issue, the lawsuit requests a judgment declaring the state law unconstitutional.

State-Promoted Juvenile Delinquency

Everyone agrees if the cause or causes of crime could be discovered, the remedy would be simple. The same belief holds for juvenile delinquency.

Thus far in spite of amassing tons of documentary evidence on the two ailments and endless theorizing by the professionals working in the two fields, the cause or causes remain as aloof as they were when Cain dispatched his brother, Abel.

Consequently the cures have been of a containment nature, isolating the offender so as to reduce his harmful potential, and bolstered somewhat in modern times by varied ventures in psychiatric treatment.

This continuing failure is not, as so many do-gooders contend, the result of indifference and stupidity on society's part. Rather it is the inability to look into a person's head to see what makes him tick or what sends him on a deviate course.

For the past 18 months the Michigan Juvenile Justice Services commission has been trying the combined operation of discovering causes and finding cures.

Along the way it has spent a $1.5 million legislative appropriation to delve into the subject of juvenile problems.

The thrust of the Commission's findings is that the juvenile problem child is somewhat like a satellite orbiting by itself in the wild blue yonder, under no control by either a crew within the vessel or from a control center on the ground.

Most of its recommendations are in the vein of taking the juvenile away from his traditional control agency, the probate court, and putting him under the guidance of social service groups, some of which already exist as components within a Community Chest and others which would be specially created to act.

This week the Commission capped that climax by recommending in a 7-4 vote that runaways and school truants under the 16th birthday should not be disciplined in any manner but should be at liberty to decide if they wish to seek voluntary assistance from a public service agency. The majority urged the establishment of shelters to house the youngsters submitting themselves for treatment and counseling.

The majority reaches this amazing conclusion by analogizing to the wayward adult.

Prosecuting attorneys long ago gave up indicting a man or wife for leaving the family nest in favor of a new partner, and unless an adult fails to support his minor children neither is it a crime for him or her to forsake the home.

Said William J. Phelps, the Commission chairman and the director of the state's juvenile justice services, "We don't think a child should be sent to court for something which isn't a crime when committed by an adult."

Without stopping to inquire if Chairman Phelps really wears a thinking cap, the only supporting rationale for the majority's conclusion is an overworking of the anti-discrimination thesis; that adults and children should be judged not by age but by what they do or fail to do.

For the most part there is not much that can be done to bring the wayward adult back to responsible behavior.

There is a chance for keeping the child from ruining his future by retraining.

If, though, left to run loose as the Commission's majority proposes, the juvenile delinquency will mount to an unbearable proportion.

So will the cost of imprisoning the adults and semi-adults emerging from that unrestrained environment.

Little wonder, most educators see lifting the truancy restriction as inducing chaos in the schools and parental groups wondering what next will come forth from their government.

Governor Milliken who appointed the Commission should replace its majority members with some people possessing common sense.

NAME POLICY 'APPALLING AFFRONT'

The 1976 Annual Report from the Carnegie Foundation in New York points out that "While the fresh currents of thought and emerging new social conventions are by no means acceptable to everyone, their existence is undeniable, and their impact on American society can be easily observed. Despite this, important governmental and private-sector policies that intimately affect... individual lives are still in the main geared to earlier value systems and beliefs. Social policies have not yet caught up with changing social practices."

The failure of the Herald-Palladium to recognize the importance and necessity of printing a woman's own name, and not that of the man she is married to, is a blatant example of insensitivity at best and at worst one more attempt to keep women dependent and nameless creatures. I have no objection with the woman who wants to be known as Mrs. John Doe. However, there are many women in this community, myself included, who want always to be known by their own names. Many of us also prefer the designation Ms. as a further statement supportive of individuality.

I have been reminded by Herald-Palladium staff in the past that it is the policy of the newspaper to identify a woman by her husband's name when she appears in the news in other than a capacity associated with her profession. However, even in the issue where I was listed as Mrs. Jeff Fischman (8-19-77) there seems to be an exception to this rule. I refer to the picture on page three where Mrs. Ann White somehow escaped being identified as Mrs. William S.

White. Other inconsistencies appear in the same photograph identification.

I cannot state strongly enough the necessity of women being identified by their own names. To continue to ignore this preference of many women in this community is an appalling affront to the integrity of the individual and an assault on an important part of human dignity — the right to be known by one's own name.

This is an opportunity for The Herald-Palladium to change an offensive and useless policy. I sincerely urge you to do so.

Carter Enrages His Home State

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Carter's policy of imposing tough new constraints on U.S. arms sales to other nations has encountered stiff opposition from an unexpected source — virtually every leading political figure in his home state of Georgia.

At stake in the dispute are potential contracts for the over-sold of hundreds of C-130 Hercules military cargo planes, by far the most popular and profitable item produced by the Lockheed-Georgia Co. at its sprawling plant in Marietta, Ga. Those foreign sales would mean not only increased revenues for financially beleaguered Lockheed but also thousands of additional jobs for Georgia residents and millions of extra dollars flowing through the state's economy.

But unrestrained sale of the C-130 to other countries, also would directly contravene Carter's commitment to reduce the spiraling global traffic in military equipment as one means of protecting the fragile worldwide peace.

Central to the C-130's problems are the provisions of the Arms Control Export Act of 1976, under which the State and Defense Departments have classified the exceptionally versatile and durable four-engine plane as "significant combat equipment."

That designation means that the Hercules cannot be sold to any non-NATO country without explicit approval from the White House. In addition, the law gives Congress authority to veto large transactions.

The clearance procedure can produce delays ranging from 5 to 20 months, complain the plane's promoters, who insist that it has countless peacetime as well as military uses because it is capable of carrying everything from miles to medicine.

They also charge that since passage of the 1976 law, Lockheed has been forced to lay off 1,400 of the 10,000 people formerly on its Georgia payroll and has lost its unofficial title as the state's biggest employer.

Georgia's entire 10-man House delegation recently enlisted more than 90 other representatives to sign a letter to Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, urging redesignation of the plane on the grounds that the C-130 "in many parts of the world has come to be associated with American humanitarian and rescue efforts."

But the fact remains that the C-130 has been designed, produced and sold for more than two decades as a military aircraft, used almost exclusively to transport troops, weapons and military materiel. (During the Vietnam war, it was even outfitted as a gunship.)

Sen. Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat, is leading a campaign to revise the law by establishing a new classification system which would arbitrarily distinguish "non-lethal" from "lethal" military equipment — with exports of the former to be expedited by the federal government.

When Georgia's lieutenant governor, Zell Miller, was visiting the White House as a tourist last spring, a presidential aide recognized him and hastily arranged an informal meeting with Carter in the Oval Office. Among the issues discussed: C-130 exports.

But only a few weeks ago Miller received a coolly worded letter from Jack H. Watson Jr., a member of Carter's senior staff, which flatly stated that "the requested reclassification could not be approved."

"The President said he was aware of the issue, he asked to be kept informed and said he would be in touch with me," explained Miller. "But no commitments were given to me."

Unfazed by continued rebuffs from Carter, members of his cabinet and his staff, Lockheed and Georgia's political hierarchy continue to press forward in their misguided campaign to find some means of unleashing the C-130.

Carter deserves the support of his non-Georgia constituents, not only because of his concern about "the special responsibilities we bear as the largest arms seller," but also because he apparently has resisted both the pressure and the temptation to make an unwarranted exception for his home state.

Allende Was A Lightweight

SANTIAGO, Chile — I will have much to report about the situation here in Chile. From a historical perspective, Chile, like Portugal, possesses very great interest. Both came within inches of Marxist dictatorship, but saved themselves at the last moment. Both, now, are trying to find their way back to political and economic normality.

Both Portugal and Chile have thus experienced attempted revolution and then counter-revolution.

It is striking that though we have entire libraries on the subject of revolution — Bakunin, Marx, Trotsky, Mao, Regis Debray, Fanon, etc., etc. — we do not have anything much on counter-revolution. Yet counter-revolution is at least as intricate a process as revolution, and ought to be studied as an important political phenomenon.

But before turning, later on, to the deep issues in the Chilean experience, I would like to try to communicate something of the special atmosphere here in Santiago.

With all the talk of repression, Americans tend to think of Chile as a sort of jail. It is not that way at all.

The first thing you have to realize is that Chile is a very small country. The population is a mere 10 million, much of it concentrated in and around Santiago.

The result is that everyone in the educated and governing class knows everyone else. In the United States and Europe, in left wing circles, the late Salvador Allende is something of a tragic hero.

Here, where everyone knew "Salvador" personally, he is anything but a hero, hardly even a villain. People from all points on the political spectrum regard him as a lightweight, a playboy, a charmer, a clown.

Everyone says that Salvador had a quick mind, but not a consecutive one. He was mad about women. When he was in office, he was dominated by his daughter Beatrice, who was a real Communist and today is married to a Cuban.

As president, Salvador had little that could be called a "policy," let alone anything so weighty as a "Chilean road to socialism." He "gave everyone jobs, and printed the money to pay them with." Naturally, soaring inflation quickly made the money worthless. He also squandered the assets accumulated by previous regimes.

Still less is Orlando Letelier any sort of hero here.

The key to Orlando was his high living, which required lots of cash. He was a charmer, quick-witted, very well dressed, opportunistic, always in need of money.

I pointed out that, at the time Letelier was blown up by a bomb in Washington, he had become entangled in international terrorism and was receiving funds through Havana.

The universal view here is that Orlando got into this deep water because he was a politician out of work and, as always, needed money.

When Letelier died, George McGovern described him in terms appropriate to Pericles.

Down here they see it differently. Was Orlando a serious Communist? "Orlando wasn't a serious anything,"

From this small beginning has emerged the Methodist Peace Temple, today one of the four largest churches in membership in the city. The church will mark its 100th anniversary with two principal observances this month.

Slowing Nuclear Race Big Goal For Carter

One of the cornerstones of President Carter's foreign policy has been his commitment to halting the spread of nuclear weapons. Although the United States alone cannot prevent nuclear proliferation, the Carter administration has been trying to persuade other members of the nuclear club to follow America's lead by stopping — or at least reducing — the export of potentially dangerous nuclear technology. The administration will have another chance to plead its case for restraint by nuclear exporters at a meeting of the International Atomic Energy Agency, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 20, in Vienna, Austria.

What concerns the administration is not the spread of nuclear reactors themselves, for nuclear fuel cannot be used directly in the production of nuclear weapons. The danger lies in the spread of facilities for uranium enrichment and the reprocessing of used reactor fuel. It is in these stages of the nuclear fuel cycle that weapons — grade nuclear material is produced. Although U.S. policy forbids overseas sales of enrichment and reprocessing plants, several European countries have in the past made such sales. West Germany, for example, in 1975 agreed to sell such facilities to Brazil. The sale was widely criticized; for one thing, Brazil had not signed the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty. The West German government announced last June that it was going ahead with the sale to Brazil, but would stop future exports of reprocessing facilities. France made a similar pledge last December about future sales of nuclear technology.

The administration has been less successful in persuading other nations to abandon fast breeder reactors in favor of more conventional nuclear reactors. Today breeder reactors are operating in Britain, France and the Soviet Union, and others are being built by West Germany, Japan and Italy. These countries like the breeder reactor because, theoretically, it can produce more fuel than it consumes. Critics of the breeder say it poses a danger to world peace because it produces weapons — grade plutonium.

President Carter faces another battle over the breeder reactor here at home. The House this month is expected to take action on a bill to continue funding for the Clinch River breeder, a prototype plant being built near Oak Ridge, Tenn. So far about $200-million has been spent on the $1.9 billion facility.

plan prepared by the Twin Cities Area Transportation Study (TwinCATS) committees and regional planners.

The women, who did not identify themselves but said they live in St. Joseph, complained that they found it difficult to get from their residences to shopping and medical facilities without public transportation. The women said they supported the concept of Dial-A-Ride as a method of public transportation.

St. Joseph at one time was one of the communities which subsidized Dial-A-Ride, but dropped out, saying there was not enough ridership to rationalize the cost. St. Joseph township Supervisor Orval Benson, who chaired the meeting, and Lincoln Supervisor Bernice Trethewey both said their townships also had to pull out of the program because of the cost.

Currently, only Benton Harbor and Benton township fund Dial-A-Ride.

In lieu of Dial-A-Ride, the St. Joseph city commission has started a trial program of issuing senior citizens coupons providing a $1 discount on taxi cab fares.

There were few comments from the 25 people attending the hearing except on the public transportation issue and on one or two localized traffic problems.

The plan reviewed last night is a compilation of transportation studies made since 1973 in the Twin Cities area, and includes proposals for road construction, public transit, development of a commercial harbor, and rail and bikeway systems.

John Kowalski, senior planner with the regional planning commission, noted that all the study does is pinpoint problem areas and that neither TwinCATS nor regional planners have any authority to implement the suggestions. He said implementation is up to individual municipalities.

"We've done as much as we can in identifying the problems," Kowalski said after the meeting. "The big hang-up is getting funds to carry out the projects suggested in the study."

"As a whole, the traffic system is adequate for the Twin Cities area," he said, "but for economic growth we need a bit of an improvement in rail, water, and air transportation systems."

Kowalski said that if the federal government gives the Twin Cities an urban designation, the area will receive more money for transportation. He predicted that designation could come by 1980.

Kowalski said the transportation plan will now go before the TwinCATS policy committee, which meets in October, for an endorsement of the final version. The plan will then be sent to municipalities in the Twin Cities area for approval at the local level. Benson, who chairs the policy committee, stressed there is still a need for more public input, especially comments from industry and business. He added that the plan can be revised or updated at any time.

Kowalski, using maps, pointed out that transportation problems come in "clusters" around Stevensville, south of St. Joseph, the two cities, and the proposed Pipestone Mall area. TwinCATS has proposed 40 construction projects to alleviate transit problems.

Among the 40 projects suggested by the study are constructing a cross-town parkway, extending airport runways for improved commercial and passenger service, and constructing the US-31 freeway southward from I-196 in Benton township to the state line.

Others include re-developing commercial port facilities and developing a multi-purpose transportation terminal for truck, rail, and water carriers.

Harbor Dredging Funds Not Available For Year

The St. Joseph River Board of Harbor commissioners yesterday learned there will be no federal funds available for at least a year for harbor dredging.

But the board nevertheless voted to apply for a state grant of $50,000 to $75,000 to hire a consultant to conduct a commercial harbor development study as part of the group's efforts to develop the harbor.

W.R. McClarnon, an engineer from the Army Corps of Engineers, told commissioners during their regular monthly meeting that the federal government has not allocated any money for dredging in the St. Joseph harbor in next year's budget.

Commission Secretary Charles Eckenstahler said that because of the federal fiscal year, no money will likely be available until October, 1978. Commissioners said they will ask Congressman Dave Stockman (R-St. Joseph) or a representative from his staff to attend next month's commission meeting in an attempt to find out how to get funds for the dredging.

Dredging is one of the top priorities for developing the harbor, according to Eckenstahler, since some ships are already running aground between the end of the channel and the railroad swing bridge. He said the Corps has agreed to ask the Environmental Protection Agency to re-evaluate previous findings so that the shallow area can be dredged.

Eckenstahler said the EPA has prohibited dredging in the shallow area because the dredgings would be polluted and a suitable disposal site has not been presented. The harbor commission, Eckenstahler said, wants to know where the polluted dredgings can be deposited in an emergency, since the area in question could become un-navigable if it gets much shallower.

Eckenstahler also said a Corps study on a dumping site for channel dredgings, which are not polluted, should be released in October. He said the study will propose that those dredgings be deposited on land owned by the City of Benton Harbor (formerly Malleable property) along Paw Paw river. He said the Corps will propose that an 18-inch diameter underground pipe carry the dredgings from the dredge boat, along the Penn Central railroad tracks, to the former Benton Harbor Malleable site.

Eckenstahler said the harbor commission hopes to know by the first of the year whether the state Department of Natural Resources will approve the grant for the commercial harbor development study. The grant request says the study would include an economic analysis, selection of potential sites for development, identification of potential users, type and quantity of commodities, and preliminary site engineering.

Last month the board voted to seek a $1.3 million grant from another state agency to purchase 40 acres of land along the river in St. Joseph and Benton Harbor for development of a harbor terminal.

A man suspected of breaking into a house on Ogden avenue residence was wounded Wednesday morning when a Benton Harbor police officer fired a shot at a fleeing man, according to police Chief Andrew Rodez.

Steve Lewis Wynn, 18, of 793 Pearl street, was arrested Wednesday afternoon at Mercy hospital when he sought treatment for a gunshot wound to his left hand, Rodez reported.

Rodez gave this account of the incident: Patrolman Lloyd Hughes responded to a sound detection alarm at 860 Ogden at 10:30 a.m. and saw a man inside the house. The man ran out the back door of the house with Hughes in pursuit.

Hughes identified himself as a police officer, shouted several times for the man to halt. The man continued to flee and Hughes fired one shot from his service revolver.

Rodez reported Wynn was arrested at 2:30 p.m. after Mercy hospital emergency room attendants contacted police. Wynn was lodged in the Berrien county jail for investigation of a charge of breaking and entering.

Rodez said his department is conducting an internal investigation of the circumstances surrounding the shooting. He said that city police policy permits the use of deadly force only when a life is endangered.

Hughes, a six year veteran of the Benton Harbor force, remained on duty today, according to Rodez.

The house at 860 Ogden was described as unoccupied but protected by a burglar alarm.

Laitys Are Sued In Traffic Death Case

Suit has been filed in Berrien Circuit court against Judge and Mrs. Harry Laity of Benton Harbor stemming from the traffic death last November of a 12-year-old Benton Harbor girl.

The suit was filed on behalf of Jessie Mae Davis, as administratrix of the estate of Wanda Davis, who died Nov. 15 when struck by a car at Empire and Colfax avenues in Benton Harbor. The suit seeks any amount of damages over $10,000 to which the plaintiff is found to be entitled.

Mrs. Frances Laity, 76, identified as the driver of the car which allegedly struck Wanda, has entered a plea of innocent in Berrien Circuit court to a charge of negligent homicide. Berrien Prosecutor John Snietanka said no trial date has yet been set.

Wanda Davis, of 447 Pavone street, was killed when struck by a car while allegedly crossing Colfax in the crosswalk, and was dragged under the car for about 200 feet down Colfax before the auto which hit her stopped. She died later in a hospital.

The suit claims Mrs. Laity was driving a car owned by her husband, and contends negligence by Mrs. Laity resulted in Wanda's death.

Dog Bites Send Two To Mercy

Two people were reported treated and released from Mercy hospital Wednesday after separate dog bite incidents, according to Benton township police.

Patrolman Tom Street said Raymond Buchanan, 5, of 1336 Whitney, Benton township, received five stitches on his right ear and Ramona Buels-Bey, 17, of 708 Columbus, Benton Harbor, received a tetanus shot.

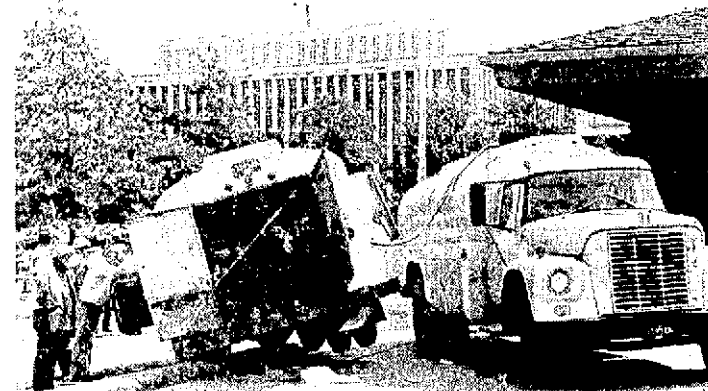

According to Street, Buchanan's mother, Betty Buchanan, reported her son was bitten at 4 p.m. when he startled a neighbor's dog which was eating from a garbage can.

Ramona Buels-Bey told police she was entering the home of Greg Johnson at 1663 Lillian at 9:30 p.m. when a dog bit her on the upper right leg. Street reported.

Street said owners of both dogs told the victims the animals had been inoculated and would be kept under observation 10 days as a safeguard against rabies.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

'Talker' Renews Her Grief

Dear Ann Landers: Six years ago, my only son, a bright, handsome 17-year-old, died as the result of someone else's reckless driving. He lived several weeks with severe brain damage and a broken body. My battle with grief has been tremendous.

Last year someone I know had a young child who was killed in an auto accident. I went to the home to express my sympathy. The woman began to phone me almost immediately after my visit. "Just to talk." Then she started to drop in unexpectedly at all hours because I had "been through the same thing and was the only one who understood what she was going through."

I prayed for strength to help her. I felt as if a drowning person had grabbed on to me and was pulling me down to the bottom of the sea with her. Now I feel guilty for resenting the way she has insinuated herself into my life. At the same time I know I must get rid of her or I'll crack up. What should I do? — Sinking

Dear Friend: You do not owe the woman emotional support at the expense of your mental health. There is something sick (maybe even punitive) about the way she has gloomed on to you.

Be perfectly candid. Tell her you cannot allow your old wounds to be reopened and her presence does just that. Suggest she work through her grief with a professional therapist. Then ring off.

Tickle Tale

Dear Ann Landers: Quite a while ago you printed a letter from a girl whose boyfriend was constantly tickling her. Your reply made reference to the fact that tickling was once a method of torture. A bel is riding on this. Please reprint that letter and settle it. — Vitally Interested

Dear Vital: I had to dig back 2½ years but here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters about relatives who tickle children "All in fun." May I comment?

As a student of Oriental history and Far Eastern culture, I can tell you that tickling was a form of torture several centuries back. Any pediatrician will verify the fact that prolonged tickling can cause hysterics and even convulsions. The expression, "tickled to death" is more than just a phrase. — Vallejo, Cal.

Tipper's Tip

Dear Ann Landers: I have a few words for that waitress in South Dakota who chastised women for being "stingy tippers." She said she would rather wait on men any day. I have had to endure many waitresses who ignored my presence, except to slap some food in front of me while they are asking my husband if he'd like more water, more coffee, or "Was the food O.K.?"

It waitresses gave women the same attention and courtesy they give men, the tips might be bigger. — Irene In Oklahoma.

Dear Okla: I received a dozens of letters from women who wrote to express the same sentiments. The volume of mail and the intensity of their wrath

By Oswald & James Jacoby
In basic bridge responders to Blackwood are the position of Tennyson's light brigade. "Their's not to reason why, their's but to do or die." They don't have to die, but they do have to respond as asked.

In advanced bidding there are several situations where responders will take independent action.

Today's hand illustrates the simplest one. South follows up his Blackwood four notrump with five notrump to ask for kings. This follow up also informs partner that they have all the aces. There is no reason to invite seven when you know there is an ace against you.

North dutifully shows his two kings and South merely goes to six spades.

At this point North revalues his hand. South was clearly thinking of seven when he bid five notrump. Could there be a trump loser? How about another loser?

South could not know that North held four sure and five very probable club tricks so North bids the grand slam which makes easily in spite of the bad club break.

Ask the Jacobys

Several readers have asked us if it is proper to show your hand and claim after trumps are drawn and the rest of your cards are good.

The answer is that it is perfectly proper, but you had best be sure of your claim, because there are various possible restrictions on future play. In general, it is better just to play the hand out quickly and save possible arguments.

His Book May Be A Best Seller

Late British author J.R. Tolkien's posthumous epic, "The Silmarillion" was published today in London and critics reported it was sure to be a best seller.

Women's Panel Okaying Wife-Beating?

By DAVID WYSOCKI
Associated Press Writer
CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Feminists are seeking to dump a women's rights commission which has opposed abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, and the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" TV show while supporting the lady bug as the state insect.

The latest flap surrounding the New Hampshire Commission on the Status of Women occurred when the panel rejected a program to help women who have been beaten by their husbands.

The panel saw it as an intrusion of government into the personal problems of New Hampshire citizens and rejected it 8-1 on Monday.

"You can't legislate love in the home. The government isn't designed to interfere here," said commissioner Simone Mason.

And commission member Gloria Betz of Nashua simply said of the program's defeat, "Some women libbers irritate the hell out of their husbands."

The commission's record also includes support of prayer in the schools and opposition to the repeal of a law banning lesbian activities and to a federal family and child services program.

But the rejection of the battered wives plan outraged feminists, groups and women legislators.

Thomson, who appoints commission members, to remove those who voted against the program.

She said women legislators have banded together to try to abolish the commission because "we felt that the group did not represent any of the issues we stood for or were working for."

Republican Rep. Susan McLane, head of the House Ways and Means Committee, called the panel's rejection of the battered wives plan "worse than absurd ... They practically said a man has the right to beat his wife."

Breast X-Ray Restrictions Urged

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national breast cancer detection program should be continued, but its use of breast X-rays should be restricted because of their potential for causing the disease in some women, a National Cancer Institute advisory group said today.

The report, presented today at a breast cancer screening meeting, said X-raying breasts, a process called mammography, effectively finds cancer that goes undetected by other methods.

But too much is unknown about the possibility of radiation causing cancer for mammography to be used routinely on all women, particularly those under age 50, the study said.

Attending the meeting at the National Institutes of Health is a group of scientists, physicians and laypersons who hope to develop a consensus on whether the detection program should be continued and what it should include.

The report reviewed data from the 54-million Breast Cancer Detection Demonstration Project, cosponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society, in which up to 270,000 volunteer women aged 35 and older are being screened for five years.

Project officials say the program so far has uncovered more than 2,500 cancers, using various screening methods.

The advisory group, headed by Dr. Oliver H. Beahrs of the Mayo Clinic, last January began reviewing the project to see what has been learned and if it could be applied to future controlled studies to resolve unanswered questions about early detection.

The current program began in 1973 with 12 medical centers and later expanded to a total of 27. Each center project is to screen about 10,000 women a year for five years, using a variety of methods, including physical examinations and thermography.

The advisory group recommended dropping thermography as a routine procedure in the program because it missed many cancers detected by X-rays. Thermography is a method of measuring heat variations in the breast in hopes of spotting cancer "hot spots."

At a briefing, Beahrs said thermography still has potential and should be kept as an option.

Concerning mammography, the panel's recommendations for X-ray exams are almost identical to guidelines already in effect for the program. This was not surprising since the guidelines were modified earlier, based in part on preliminary recommendations from the group.

The report said routine yearly mammographies should be restricted to women aged 50 and over, who are at highest risk of the disease. Women age 40 to 49 should have X-ray exams only if they had previous breast cancer or close female relatives had the disease, an indication of hereditary risk factor.

The study group said women 35 to 39 years of age should be screened with mammography only if they previously had breast cancer. The current program guidelines also allow this group X-ray exams if close relatives, such as a mother or sister, had cancer.

DETROITERS LISTENING IN

Mayor Race War Of Words Seen

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Councilman Ernest Browne says he will try to defeat incumbent Mayor Coleman Young by provoking him into costly rhetoric and campaign errors.

According to a Browne adviser, "the best thing he could do is make Coleman mad and then Coleman will get into his street fighter thing and start shouting from the hip." For his part, Young said he wants to debate his record and added, "I'm going to try and not be provoked by that lying b-----."

Although voters in the nation's sixth largest city will be choosing between two black men for mayor, the balloting is expected to split along racial lines. Young, Detroit's first black mayor, and Browne were chosen in Tuesday's primary. Young rolled up 90 per cent of the black vote to finish first with 55 per cent of the ballots cast. Browne finished second by capturing the largest share of the white vote, which he and two white candidates had been wooing.

Browne projected himself as a God-fearing family man with traditional values, using his image against the twice-divorced Young, who does not attend church regularly. Young's post-election labeling of Browne as a "liar and a racist" did nothing to change the prognosis for a black-white voter split in the Nov. 8 runoff. During the campaign he had derisively called Browne "the first black white hope in history."

Browne, 51, a city councilman and career municipal employee, outdrew his two major white opponents in the 11-candidate primary field by 3-2 and 2-1 margins in white neighborhoods in collecting 21 per cent of the vote. But he got only five per cent of the black vote. Detroit is about 55 per cent black, but among registered voters there are nearly equal numbers of blacks and whites. Browne, supported by the largely-white police and firefighter unions, vowed to go after the black vote for the general election. He said he had to court whites in the primary to draw support from white candidates John Mogk and Thomas E. Dailey.

Young said he considers the major issue whether or not Detroit is a better city now than it was in 1973, his first year in office. But Brown contends Young's record benefits the mayor's political friends and says he will campaign against it.

He adds that he wants to run "not against Coleman Young, but for Detroit. Young just happens to be an obstacle in the way of my doing the things that I want to do for Detroit." Backed by business and union leaders, Young made much of his friendship with President Carter and his ability to get grants from Washington.

Browne said Young was developing downtown at the expense of the neighborhoods, and Young's efforts to add more blacks and women police officers had demoralized the police department.

Teacher Retirement Pay In 'No Danger' Of Cutoff

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state budget director says there is no danger of a cutoff of pension payments to Michigan teachers and other school employees, despite a court ruling overturning the state's method of funding the benefits.

Gerald Miller said Wednesday that Michigan's public school employees retirement system contains nearly $3 billion in assets, enough to take care of all payment needs.

And he called the pension problem "a technical issue," which may be resolved through a change in accounting procedures. He said the administration has prepared legislation to alter the actuarial method by which the soundness of the pension system is judged.

The state Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday the state cannot keep paying current retirement benefits out of money earmarked for future pension payments.

The ruling came in a suit filed by the Retirement Coordinating Council, representing school workers. They charged the state has been underfunding the pension system in the point of endangering benefits in the future.

Pension system officials in the Department of Management and Budget huddled with attorney general's representatives Wednesday to discuss the fiscal impact of the court ruling and whether to appeal the decision to the Supreme Court.

But officials said they haven't determined how much extra cash the state may have to come up with. They have estimated it may need an additional $40 million to $60 million to replace money the court says must be held to ensure pensions in the years ahead.

Miller, however, said the money will be needed only if the legislature fails to pass the bill altering the system's bookkeeping.

Dorothy Eubank, director of the retirement council, acknowledged there is plenty of money in the fund. "The dispute is the fact they are not continuing to fund the system according to the constitution, and therefore eventually the fund will diminish," she said.

Pryor's Show Snubbed In G.R.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — If Richard Pryor's first variety show is to appear on television screens in Grand Rapids and three other cities, it will be late at night.

The four stations, including one in Grand Rapids which never before had canceled a variety show due to its content, skipped the debut of Pryor's program Tuesday night.

Other stations canceling were in Boston, Philadelphia, and Winston Salem, N.C., according to an NBC spokesman in New York. The spokesman said Wednesday the Boston and Philadelphia stations already plan to show Pryor at 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

"There were about seven things within the program that were objectionable," said Marvin Chauvin, station manager for WOTV here.

Chauvin said he found the language too strong and some skits objectionable, "especially during the family viewing time when a significant portion of the viewing audience is children."

He also criticized the comedian's use of guns and knives, claiming one skit where Pryor cut himself with a knife "could have been dangerous."

Chauvin said NBC did not provide a screening of the program for affiliates until Monday night and WOTV executives did not see it until Tuesday morning.

"It was not an easy decision. It was a very reluctant decision," Chauvin said. "We had promoted it heavily. We took out newspaper ads and advertised it on our own station for two months."

"But he contended, 'We have an obligation by virtue of our license, if there are objectionable things in a show to be careful about airing it. We are up out to be a moral conscience.'"

Chauvin said he will ask network officials again if the show can be rescheduled later in the day. But the station manager reported when he contacted the network Tuesday, his request to show Pryor's program later at night was rejected.

BH Man Asks Court Hearing

Roger Dale Buckley, 31, of 150 Fifth street, Benton Harbor, demanded examination in Berrien Fifth District court yesterday on a charge of breaking and entering a business located in the same building as his apartment.

Benton Harbor police Sgt. Philipp Schneider said Buckley was arrested inside Kent Vending and Amusements, Inc., 146 Fifth street, early Wednesday. Police said Buckley's apartment is above the business.

Buckley was jailed after failing to post $12,000 bond.

In other court cases:

Laurie Christine Ishmael, 20, Route 2, Watervliet, demanded examination on a charge of uttering and publishing a false check at Wohler's IGA, St. Joseph on April 29.

Sentenced yesterday were: Roosevelt Washington, 49, Clayton, La., $150 fines and costs for possession of an unregistered weapon — a pistol — in his car in Benton township on Sept. 3.

Herschel W. Caruthers, 28, Constantine, $125 for petty larceny, taking apples from Benton Richards in Pipestone township yesterday.

Louis Lachman, 22, 886 Grant avenue, St. Joseph township, $400 for impaired driving, reduced from driving under the influence of intoxicants, second offense, in Watervliet township on Aug. 22.

Jerry Owens, 50, Gary, Ind., $152 or 30 days for driving under the influence of intoxicants in Three Oaks yesterday morning.

Michael E. Boyer, 21, 1530 Pipestone street, Benton township, three days and $71 or 30 days for driving with a suspended license in Benton township Sept. 13.

Wayne E. Williams, 20, 166 Apple avenue, Benton Harbor, three days and $100 or 30 days for driving with a suspended license.

Business Tax Relief Bill Ready

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state House will take up legislation that would give tax relief to small and low-profit businesses when lawmakers return from summer vacation next week.

The bill, unanimously approved Wednesday by the House Taxation Committee, would lift $50 million to $60 million in tax burden from such companies. Larger, more profitable firms such as automakers and utility companies, would pay higher taxes to make up the lost revenue.

The measure also exempts farmers from paying the state's controversial single business tax, and contains relief for firms with large payrolls.

After the bill was approved 11-0 with both Democratic and Republican support, taxation committee Chairman George Montgomery, D-Detroit, urged members to reject attempts to amend the bill when it reaches the floor. "I hope we go to the floor united," he said.

The Senate Finance Committee has approved a different version, which is before the Senate, and Gov. William Milliken has proposed his own changes in the two-year-old tax. But Gerald Miller, director of the Department of Management and Budget, acknowledged the House bill "provides meaningful relief."

The bill contains the following changes in the business tax, which is based on a company's profits, payroll, interest and depreciation:

—The tax deduction for small and low-profit businesses would be increased from $36,000 to $40,000.

—The bill would permit a larger number of firms to qualify for a tax break if they employed many workers.

Currently, a company whose labor force makes up more than 65 per cent of its tax base gets a tax break. If, for example, a company's labor force constitutes 68 per cent of the tax base, the firm gets to subtract 3 per cent of its tax base.

The bill would lower the labor force limit to 63 per cent, and for small firms it would drop to 35 per cent. So a small company with a large payroll could eliminate a large portion of its tax base.

—A total exemption for agriculture.

—A simpler method of filing estimated tax payments.

—Special tax breaks for transportation, food, real estate and other businesses, which would be slated to expire this year, would be extended.

To qualify for the small business tax break, a firm could make no more than $2 million a year in gross profits. No owner or partner could earn more than $40,000.

To make up the lost revenue, the state will tax depreciation more heavily. Instead of taxing only half the depreciation on items owned before the tax took effect, the state will tax 100 per cent of such depreciation.

The single business tax was designed to simplify the tax system and promote economic growth and jobs by giving breaks to major manufacturers. But small businessmen, professionals and farmers have complained bitterly that they have been overburdened.

Two Yards Damaged By Auto

COLOMA — Two property owners residing along Shore drive in Coloma township reported their yards were damaged when an auto ran over them.

Filing complaints with the township police department Wednesday morning were LaMoyne Bellinger, 4780 Shore drive, and Joyce Mandro, 8807 Shore drive.

Mrs. Mandro told police the driver of the car crossed her yard and came very close to her bedroom window.

The incident, according to police, occurred sometime late Tuesday.

No estimate of damage was given by police.

Classes run from three to eight weeks, Weller said. A sample of other class offerings include: archery, arc and acetylene welding, Black culture, bookkeeping, colonial rug braiding, electricity, film processing, pottery, racquetball, shorthand, standard first aid, winterizing vehicles, typing and woodcarving.

Interested adults can contact Weller at the high school for further information. Most classes begin the first week of October.

BABY MAKES THREE: Steve and Lois Wolfson pose outside their apartment near the beach in Los Angeles with their son Adam, 2. Their landlord told them Adam's presence will require them to leave. # L.A. Pair Fight Landlord's Ban Against Children

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve and Lois Wolfson like their apartment overlooking a yacht harbor at Marina del Rey, and they say they're not about to leave just because they have a baby.

For almost a year, they ignored an eviction notice issued after their landlord established a ban on children.

Now they have asked Judge Harold I. Cherness of Culver City Municipal Court to rule on a suit they brought to keep the $390-a-month apartment. Testimony begins today.

Mrs. Wolfson said nobody objected for more than a year after she brought Adam home from the hospital in September 1975.

"We've never had any complaints about Adam," Mrs. Wolfson said. "In fact, all of our neighbors have signed affidavits saying they like him and want him to stay in the building, and they're appearing in court on our behalf."

In November 1976, after the Wolfsons had signed a lease renewal, they got a letter from their landlord, Marina Point Ltd., telling them they would have to leave because of the baby. They chose to fight eviction.

Several other children already live in the apartment complex. They lived there before the ban was imposed.

"The children from adjacent buildings who come over to play in front of this one are a lot noisier than Adam's ever been," said a neighbor, Robert Smith.

Lorne Despres, a director of the Fair Housing for Children Coalition, said the refusal of landlords to rent to families with children raises discrimination questions as profound as those of the early civil rights struggles.

"Landlords make unfair generalizations about children, using pretty much the same arguments given by all bigots," she said.

John Iizel, president of the California Apartment and Motel Managers Association Inc., disagrees.

"When you start renting to children, then the property is just going to deteriorate," he said. "There's going to be writing on the walls and so forth. I know, because it's happened to me before."

Richard F. Hamlin, attorney for Marina Point, declined to discuss the case, but the Wolfsons' attorney, Eugene Gratz, predicted: "The matter will go at least to the California Supreme Court, and could go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court."

"This case," he said, "is basically a question of whether or not the state will deny the equal protection of the constitution to families."

Wolfson, an attorney himself, said there has been no definitive state legal test of the issue.

MEA, Labor Union Endorse State Lobby Reform Legislation

By ROB WILSON
Associated Press Writer
KANSING, Mich. (AP) — Saying such legislation is long overdue, the Michigan State AFL-CIO has endorsed a bill imposing stiff regulations on lobbyists and lobbying activities.

Two other groups involved in lobbying — the Michigan Education Association and Common Cause — also gave the bill their support Wednesday. The state Chamber of Commerce said, however, that it opposes the measure in its present form.

The groups spoke out during the last of 10 statewide public hearings on the legislation.

"To say that a reform of the Michigan lobbying laws is overdue is the understatement of the year," state AFL-CIO President William Marshall said.

"Our organization is concerned with the amount of money that is being expended, not always in the best interest of the taxpayers," Marshall added. "There's a lot of money floating around."

The AFL-CIO has stated that helping pass lobbying reform legislation is one of the organization's main goals this year.

The bill, now under consideration in the Senate Municipalities and Elections Committee, requires sweeping disclosure of money spent lobbying public officials.

The bill also imposes restrictions on public officials moving directly into lobbying when leaving their state jobs and gives local governments power to regulate lobbyists. Like existing law, the measure would require lobbyists to register with the state.

"The MEA supports the need to toughen the laws and this bill can do it," spokesman Al Short said. Passage of the bill would help "rebuild public confidence in the legislative process," he said.

Short also said the MEA opposes the provision in the bill that exempts religious organizations.

"They are very active and should be treated as any other lobbyist in the state," he said.

Common Cause, a lobbying organization, said it supports the legislation because "passage will help dispel the suspicion that corruption is endemic in government."

The state Chamber of Commerce, however, said the bill, in its present form, "will not accomplish its intended purpose — adequate regulation of lobbying practices in our state."

The bill fails to clearly define who qualifies as a lobbyist, and certain sections of the bill "threaten to tread upon the rights of many individuals," president James Barrett said.

The chamber also said the law would place restrictions on lobbyists and not on legislators.

"It takes two to corrupt, and the bill appeals to only one-half of that equation," Barrett said.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Gary Corbin, D-Clia, said response to the hearings has been "positive." He said he expects the Senate to begin debate on the measure by the end of the month.

MAYOR GETS ACTION: Jimmie McNeely, of Benton Harbor public works department, trims shrub in park north of Mercy hospital. Mayor Joel Patterson said Monday condition of park "embarrassed" him. Public works crew moved in Wednesday mowed raked and trimmed park that is bounded by Pipestone, Union and Empire streets. Art Renfro, a public works supervisor, said grass had been partially cut by youths in Work Opportunities Resources Corps program that is not supervised by public works. "They don't tell us what they're going to do or where they're going to do it," Renfro said. "After they had worked at that park, we finished the job and it looks nice." ## Air Force Admits Fault In Death Of Newborn

MIAMI (AP) — Michelle Pope's baby died at delivery because a base hospital was on a three-day holiday and the limited staff failed to give her "proper care and treatment."

The Air Force admits it was at fault. It has offered $15,000 in restitution. But Mrs. Pope and her estranged husband, Army Sgt. James Pope, say it's not enough to make up for their mental suffering and the breakup of their marriage.

"I never saw my baby. I had to ask if it was a boy or a girl. I wanted her to have her name, not just be a dead baby," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday. A federal judge set a final hearing for Friday to decide the government's liability. It was not known how much the Pops are asking.

Testimony showed Jessica Marie was alive and well in her mother's womb when the time for delivery arrived and passed but that labor should have been induced.

But the Homestead Air Force Base hospital staff failed to give Mrs. Pope needed tests when she arrived because no doctors were on duty during the 1975 Veterans Day holiday. The night duty nurses, the government added, were not certain of their ability to treat the woman. The Air Force said fluid was drawn from the woman's abdominal wall in a "non-medical" procedure usually done to test the condition of the baby or to help induce abortion.

"I knew what was going on, but I didn't want to know," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday in a choked voice. She said when the baby was delivered, the doctor would not speak to her or show her the baby.

"I looked over and the nurse was crying," Mrs. Pope recalled. "Then I knew." She said her divorce one year later was caused by the mental anguish she and her husband suffered because of the baby's death.

Mrs. Pope broke down on the stand and the testimony was recessed for 15 minutes to allow her to regain composure.

In taking responsibility for the death, the Air Force said: "The United States does not contest the allegation that if proper care and treatment were rendered to the patient, Michelle Pope, the baby would, based on a reasonable degree of medical certainty, have been delivered alive and healthy."

Republican Push For 2-Level Minimum Wage Gains Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's 1.6 million unemployed teenagers may hold the key as the House debates how much to raise the minimum wage.

An increase in the wage floor was expected to be approved today, with some observers predicting a raise of 35 cents to $2.65 an hour in January, as President Carter and the AFL-CIO have agreed to.

But the stubbornly high unemployment rate for youths has won business support for its attempt to set a wage floor for youths under the minimum for adults.

Some 17.5 per cent of Americans aged 16 to 19, the government says, are looking for jobs but not finding any. For black teenagers, the jobless rate is 40.4 per cent.

Republicans are solidly behind a two-level minimum wage, with teens guaranteed 75 per cent or 85 per cent of the adult rate. They have been joined by moderate and conservative Democrats.

The sub-rate would apply for teenagers' first six months on the job. Afterwards, they would be paid as adults.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Congress needs to "recognize that we are making a bad situation worse — especially for minority group teenagers who face a 40 per cent unemployment rate — if we don't make a special exception for young workers."

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall thinks employers might hire youths rather than adults if the youths could be had cheaper. He warned that adults who head households could thus lose their jobs to teen-agers.

Marshall said some youths can't find work because they have few marketable skills — but he said the solution is to train them and, if necessary, help them build good work habits.

He noted that President

'Peer Group' Plan Lauded In Schools

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Four Berrien county schools participating in a new "peer group" counseling program — with students counseling other students — had a decrease in truancy, students taking part in the program, an independent evaluation has found.

The evaluation report of the new program, sponsored by Berrien county juvenile court, was presented by Berrien court and school officials at a press conference yesterday.

The program, funded by a $98,500 grant from the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice, ran the first year in Fairplain junior high school, Benton Harbor Alternative education center, Niles high school and Niles Ring Lardner junior high school.

The evaluation report, prepared by Dr. Richard Boehm of the University of Missouri, used "before and after" school and court records of the 236 students to determine the success of the program. The report found that total disciplinary violations decreased by 39 per cent; delinquent acts decreased 65 per cent; truancy, 32 per cent; use of hard drugs, 50 per cent; and use of hard liquor, 42 per cent. The decreases were for 1976-77 compared to 1975-76.

The program ends when funds run out Sept. 30, according to Charles Kehoe, director of Berrien juvenile court services, and the Berrien juvenile court is applying for another $111,000 grant to continue the program for another year.

The program was conducted in the four schools by Peer Culture Development, Inc., a nonprofit consulting firm from Rock Island, Ill., which also operates similar programs in inner city schools in Detroit and Chicago.

Don Jones, director of Peer Culture Development, said yesterday the program is based on the premise that the greatest influence on young people's actions are other young people.

"The program mobilizes the power of peer influence and turns it into a positive influence rather than a negative one," Jones said. "The key to the success of the program is that the young people have to do the

EVALUATE NEW PROGRAM: Berrien county court and school officials held press conference yesterday to present evaluation of new "peer group" counseling program in two Benton Harbor district schools and two Niles schools. work; it involves young people in helping each other.

The students in the program attend group meetings every day and discuss their problems and possible solutions with other students, Jones said. The students attend the meetings as a regular class and receive class credit for taking part in the program, he said.

Students taking part in the program — some who have delinquency problems and some who do not — are interviewed and selected by an adult group leader who also supervises daily group discussions, Jones said.

The study also found that almost 90 per cent of the students participating in the program agreed that the program was worthwhile.

Kehoe said the county juvenile court and the four schools decided to try out the new program after traditional means of dealing with delinquents in schools didn't seem to be working.

"Suspension, which was used in the schools as a form of punishment, simply isolated the troublemaker, removed him from the school environment and did little to encourage a change in behavior," he said.

SJ Woman Is Injured In Collision

Dorothy Reid, 70, of 1007 St. Joseph drive, St. Joseph, was treated and released from Memorial hospital Wednesday for injuries sustained in a traffic accident at the 1-94 exit ramp off Napier avenue, Benton township.

Township police said she was a passenger in a car driven by Phyllis Johnson, 64, of 1101 Market street, St. Joseph, which was involved in a collision with an auto driven by Carolyn S. White, 34, of 1805 Edison drive, Lincoln township. Police said no tickets were issued.

The four schools were experiencing a continuing increase in vandalism and delinquent acts, Kehoe said. During the 1975-1976 school year, Kehoe said:

— At the Benton Harbor Alternative education center, there were 8 reported cases of vandalism, an average of 2 to 3 violent confrontations per week, and 139 suspensions for a variety of reasons. The enrollment was only 43. The center is for students who can't adjust to regular programs at Benton Harbor high school.

— At Fairplain junior high, with an enrollment of 576, there were 176 incidents of violence and 553 suspensions. Fairplain junior high is in the Benton Harbor district.

— At Niles high school, with an enrollment of 1,383, there were 24 fights, numerous acts of vandalism and almost 300 suspensions.

— At Ring Lardner junior high, with an enrollment of 792, there were 145 suspensions, 82 fights, 66 major truancy problems, and numerous acts of vandalism.

As an example of how the new peer group program works, Ken Adams of Peer Culture Development, who coordinates the program in Berrien county, said a student who took part in the program skipped school 11 times last year and would have been suspended the 12th time.

"The other students asked him where he was going with his life," Adams said. "No teacher or counselor could have had a greater impact on that kid than those 12 fellow students. He's an entirely different kid this year."

Allegan Schools Get $158,000

A $158,000 grant to the Allegan County School District is arriving more than $254 million that will be distributed throughout Michigan under President Carter's work stimulus package.

The Allegan grant is for construction of an educational service center.

The grants, which come from the U.S. Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration, were awarded for everything from repairing sidewalks to building high school indoor swimming pools.

They are intended to create jobs in areas of high unemployment and are part of a $4 billion budget for the whole country.

The city of Detroit's grants total nearly $8 million, and will finance plumbing and electrical renovations and the construction of a community center.

The state won $2.9 million to improve facilities at Northville State Hospital, and the Caru Community School Board, east of Saginaw in Tuscola County, will build a heated, indoor swimming pool with its $1,063,000 grant.

Grand Rapids won $2.4 million for a performing arts center, and $1.5 million grants went to Battle Creek to build a warehouse and East Lansing a fire station.

The smallest grant, $4,000, will finance a new community center in Skandia Township.

The other recipients — announced Tuesday — were Manistee, Jackson County Intermediate School district, Midland, Midland County, Muskegon, Muskegon County, Muskegon Heights, Tuscola County, Alpena County, East Lansing Public Schools, Capac Community School District, Chippewa County, Owosso Township, Saginaw School District, Alma, Bay County, Greenville and the East Jackson Public Schools.

Sreboth Issues School Attendance Reminder

Parents and guardians of children ages 6 to 16 were reminded of Michigan's compulsory school attendance law which requires children of that age range to be in school, in an announcement by Ray Sreboth, superintendent of the Berrien Intermediate school district.

It is especially important that children be enrolled as early as possible in the school year in order to take full advantage of the educational programs offered, he said.

His announcement also said:

"State aid to public schools is related to the number of pupils in membership and it is important to note that the membership count date this year is Friday, September 30. Youngsters must have been enrolled by that date in order for schools to receive state aid membership allotments for them. Parents should make arrangements to enroll children in their local school as soon as possible if they are not now registered."

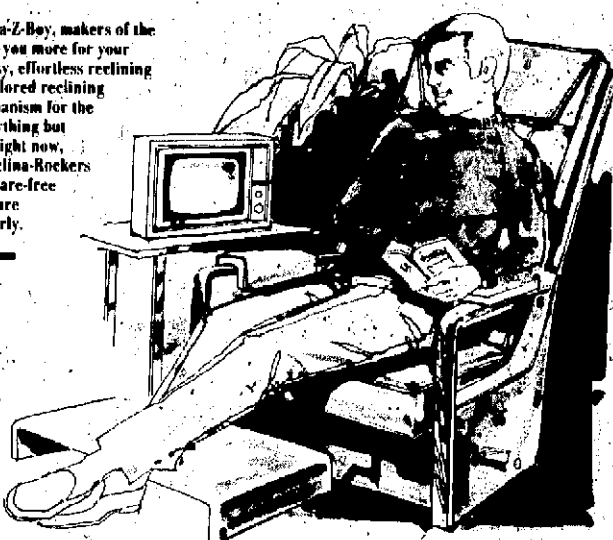

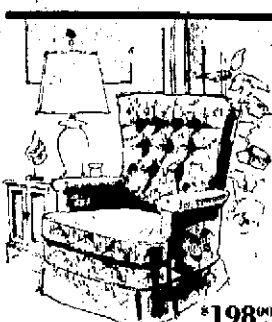

"Michigan law also requires that special educational services be made available to all handicapped persons from the ages of 0 to 25 or to completion of a program. For the primary handicapped, the services are sometimes provided in the home. Any school may serve as a referral source for special education services if the district does not directly provide the services needed."

"A wide range of school services, including adult education, is available in Berrien county and the school agencies are willing and anxious to provide educational opportunities."

Demand Builds For Merit Taste Technology.

High and low tar smokers converted as news of 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco spreads.

There is a way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into a low tar cigarette.

MERIT proved it.

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain "flavor-rich" ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The result was 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers the kind of taste smokers can switch to. And stick with.

Tanker Flip Shuts I-196 Near G.R.

WYOMING, Mich. (AP) — It was nearly midnight before police and fire crews were able to remove a tanker that overturned near here, blocking an interstate highway for almost 12 hours.

Although it took half the day for crews to empty the tanker of its 8,500 gallons of highly flammable propane gas after the vehicle overturned Wednesday morning, police said there was no fire or explosion.

Police said driver David Webster, 35, of Kokomo, Ind., was driving the tanker rig on Interstate 196 near this Grand Rapids suburb when he lost control of the vehicle. The tanker smashed into a bridge, rolling over and finally wedging upside-down against the abutment.

Ceiling On Retiree Earnings May Be Raised

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired people could earn up to $1,500 more without losing Social Security benefits under a plan approved by a House subcommittee, whose chairman says the current limit reduces the elderly to eating pet food.

Recipients who now earn more than $3,000 lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they bring in above the ceiling. That limitation, says Rep. James A. Burke, D-Miss., means some retirees are "living on a diet of cat and dog food."

In a move experts say could affect a million people, the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security Wednesday tentatively approved raising the allowance in 1978.

Under the proposal, recipients could earn $6,000 in 1979 without facing an aid cut-back.

The limit on exempt earnings this year is $3,000. It is expected to go to $3,340 in 1978 and $3,480 in 1979 under a provision of the existing law that ties benefits to inflation.

Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell opposed the change, saying it would be "too costly at this time."

The subcommittee's move, approved unanimously, was a compromise between Republicans, who wanted to abolish the limitation, and Democrats, who backed a smaller hike.

As part of the compromise, the subcommittee agreed that the whole subject would be considered again when the panel takes up long-range changes in Social Security, probably next year.

The subcommittee is now putting together legislation to keep the deficit-plagued Social Security system alive.

All the votes it is now taking are subject to later change or reversal. Burke, the panel chairman, predicted the move "wouldn't get 50 votes against it" if it reaches the House floor.

Partly offsetting the cost of raising the income lid, the subcommittee voted to remove from the law a quirk that allows a retired person to earn as much as he can in a month if he forfeits his benefits for that month.

The cost of raising the earnings limit was estimated at $2 billion in 1979, $2.4 billion in 1980 and $2.5 billion in 1981. The savings from eliminating the monthly option were calculated at $400 million a year.

The subcommittee recommended adding some six million federal, state and local government employees to the system and voted to end the option state and local governments and nonprofit organizations have of withdrawing from Social Security.

Electoral Vote In House Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rival proposals to change the way Americans elect their President are up for a vote in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

One proposal would elect the nation's chief executive by direct popular vote. Others would alter, but not scrap, the electoral college system.

The committee had planned to vote on the choices Wednesday, but disputes over other matters put off action until today.

the tanks almost immediately, and firefighters were called to the scene to spray a detergent-based foam on the wreckage to keep it from exploding.

Webster suffered only minor injuries, police said.

State highway crews had to use a crane to right the truck so its contents could be drained into another vehicle. A one-mile section of I-196 was closed during the time it took to remove the propane and clear the highway, a task finished shortly before midnight.

The truck was bound from South Bend, Ind., to nearby Lowell, Webster reported.

Mercy Hospital Reroof Job Tops BH Permits

The Benton Harbor building inspection department during the past week issued 16 permits for varied projects totaling an estimated $33,990.

Nearly half the valuation was in a reroofing job at Mercy hospital, 960 Agard avenue. The permit, listing the job at $18,180, was issued to Fenner Roofing and Sheet Metal Co. The work is to be on the south wing.

Bone Loss Is Key Factor In Aging Process

ANN ARBOR — Jack Benny was right.

Nutritionists and anthropologists with their statistics and computers have determined we don't start aging until after 39 years of age. Forty, to be exact.

The tell-tale sign of aging, now determined to be at age 40, is "bone" deterioration. "In earlier life we gain bone, and in later life we lose bone," said Stanley M. Garn, University of Michigan professor of nutrition and anthropology.

Though a few grey hairs and wrinkles may appear to signal the onset of aging, they are not the true benchmarks because they are not life-threatening. It's the clanking call of the creaking bone that is the overture to the aging process.

"Bone loss is a problem, simply because it diminishes the mechanical integrity of the skeletal units, reducing their capacity to withstand compressive forces or bending stresses, or both," reports Prof. Garn, who is also a Fellow in the U-M Center for Human Growth and Development.

Moreover, adds the U-M growth expert, as age progresses, there is increased risk of fractures, which brings additional risks of its own. For an 80-year-old woman, for example, a simple slip on ice could lead to months of hospitalization, a 10 per cent chance of death or permanent disability, and a $10,000 medical bill.

"In addition to human suffering, the yearly cost of adult bone loss may be estimated in the billions," states Garn.

He says that Presidents Carter and Kennedy were also right: life is unfair. More scitifically than philosophically the U-M growth expert asserts that women are special victims of the injustices of the aging process. They are not only more susceptible to the fracturing consequences of bone loss, women tend to shrink more than men as they grow old.

Though most people, in varying degrees, creak, shrink or break as they age, it is not certain why. Explanations, according to Garn, tend to fall into two major categories: mineral deprivation or hormone changes.

Calcium has long been cited as the essential ingredient of good bone structure, which it is. But, according to Garn, "within populations there is no evidence that a higher calcium intake prevents bone loss or that a lower calcium intake promotes it."

In short, all people lose bone, regardless of the calcium content of their diets.

As for hormone changes, often associated with menopause, that's harder to prove as the cause of bone loss, Garn notes. For one thing, bone loss begins at least 10 years before the median age of menopause. For another, aging (bone loss) begins at about the same age equally for men and women. Moreover, the aging process continues long after the so-called change-of-life period.

Can this process, known as "osteoporosis," be stopped or reversed? Not likely, or at least knowingly at the present.

There are facts, recipes, even scientific attempts to retard the aging process of bone deterioration, ranging from drinking skimmed milk to red wine, from injections of estrogen to ingestion of fluorides.

Since nothing to date is known to stop the aging process, or human bone deterioration, the U-M growth and nutrition expert suggests that we keep mentally alert by resisting the aging process.

Mechanics Test Seminars Slated

Lake Michigan college will offer a series of seminars, Sept. 27-Oct. 20, to help area mechanics prepare for the certification tests administered by Michigan Bureau of Automotive Regulation, according to Samuel Laswell, LMC automotive technology instructor.

"These seminars will help mechanics pass the various tests so they may become certified," Laswell said.

The state motor vehicle mechanic certification program stipulates that after Jan. 1, 1978, "a person shall not engage in the business or activity of a specialty or master mechanic unless the person is certified."

The seminar subjects and dates are: Engine Repair, Sept. 27; Engine Tune-up, Sept. 28; Front-end and Steering Systems, Oct. 4; Brakes and Draking Systems, Oct. 6; Automatic Transmission, Oct. 11; Manual Transmission and Front and Rear Axle, Oct. 14; Electrical Systems, Oct. 18; and Heating and Air Conditioning, Oct. 20.

The seminar sessions have been arranged so the mechanic can attend the appropriate seminar sessions during the week prior to testing. The tests will be given on Oct. 1, 8, 15, and 22. Mechanics must be pre-registered to take the tests, according to Laswell.

The seminar sessions will be held in Rm. B-102 on the LMC

LMC Extends Registration To Sept. 22

Fall semester registration at Lake Michigan college has been extended to Thursday, Sept. 22, according to college officials. "We are doing this not only to comply with state regulations, but also to permit still undecided students and adults in the area to enroll for courses," said Margaret Crisnal, assistant dean of students in charge of registration.

State regulations dictate the number of days to be available for late registration, including dropping and adding classes. Extended registration is taking place from Sept. 12 through Sept. 16 in Rm. L-301 adjacent to the Student Union and from Sept. 19 through Sept. 22 in Rm. C-201; the LMC records and registration offices. # Property Tax Cut Top Aim Of State GOP

By LARRY MACINTYRE
Staff Writer

Michigan House Republican Leader Dennis O. Cawthorne (R-Muskegon) says Democrats in the legislature may be dragging their heels on property tax reform in an effort to lure voters into calling a constitutional convention in 1978.

The question of whether a convention should be called to write a replacement for the present 16-year-old document will appear on the 1978 general election ballot. The document calls for such an election every 16 years.

Cawthorne, who was in the Twin Cities yesterday, said Democrats are being silent on the issue of property tax reform. He said he suspects they may be holding off on any action to reduce property taxes so it can be offered in a new constitution that would also include a long-sought graduated income tax.

Michigan voters have repeatedly rejected graduated income tax proposals, most recently last November.

Nevertheless, Cawthorne said, the Democrats may try to offer the "bitter pill" to voters again in a new constitution spiced with a tempting reduction in property taxes.

At present, income in Michigan is taxed at a uniform 4.6 per cent.

The GOP has made passage of a property tax reform measure this year one of its priority goals, Cawthorne said.

Reform proposals favored by Republican legislators would link reduced property taxes with an income tax hike, but it would not be a graduated income tax which the GOP almost solidly opposes, he said.

However, Cawthorne added, passage of a reform measure will be an uphill fight because Democrats hold a 68-42 majority in the house and a 24-14 majority in the senate.

Cawthorne's visit to the Twin Cities was part of a two-week tour he is making of 19 Michigan cities to rally public support for GOP goals when the legislature reconvenes Sept. 19.

The exposure may also help the 37-year-old Harvard law school graduate if he decides to run for governor in 1978.

Cawthorne said he will "look with a great deal of interest" on running if Gov. William Milliken decides not to seek reelection. That decision is expected in November, Cawthorne said.

If Milliken chooses to run again, Cawthorne said he will support re-election of the governor.

An 11-year veteran in the legislature, Cawthorne said he sees little hope for passage of a bill that would allow parimutuel betting on dog races.

"Even if it were approved, I believe the governor would veto it," Cawthorne added.

He said Republicans are presently considering four different property tax reform proposals, each of which would involve a concurrent raise in income tax.

Briefly outlined, the proposals are:

— Set a 14-mill limit on school property taxes and pool all school taxes collected on industrial and commercial properties in the state into a single fund. The money would be distributed equally to each school district. At present, the average school levy in Michigan is 28 mills, Cawthorne said.

— Assess residential and agricultural property at 25 per cent of cash value rather than at 50 per cent. Such a move would have the effect of cutting property taxes by as much as 30 per cent across the board.

— Give each school district the option of lowering taxes by nine mills in exchange for the right to charge a one per cent tax in each school district.

— Place very low limits on property taxes and establish a graduated income tax. This plan has very little support among GOP lawmakers, Cawthorne said.

In addition to property tax reform, other priorities set by the GOP this year include enactment of stronger anti-crime legislation, reform of the single business tax, placing more controls on lobbying, job development and welfare reform.

The GOP is seeking a complete revision of the state's juvenile code to give juvenile judges the power to confine young offenders for up to one year, Cawthorne said.

The revision would also include provisions to improve the training and qualifications of juvenile workers and to improve juvenile services and facilities.

The GOP will also work for a measure that would force felons convicted of violent crimes to serve at least their minimum sentence before being paroled, Cawthorne said.

Cawthorne said he was quite certain that some changes to the single business tax could be made this fall.

He said the GOP will work to give a bigger exemption to small businesses and those that are labor intensive.

"There's a good change that agriculture can be completely removed from the single business tax," Cawthorne said. He said he was referring to farms and growers but not processors.

Cawthorne formerly lived at Manistee but recently moved to Muskegon which is in the same 88th Legislative District.

Motorist Crashes

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A sleepy 22-year-old Portage man, who ignored a police warning to get off the road and take a nap, plowed into a bridge abutment along US-131 late Wednesday, troopers reported.

David DeVries was not injured in the smashup, which demolished his company-owned car, officials said.

State troopers at Wayland said they spotted DeVries' car weaving down the road about 15 minutes before the accident and issued a citation for careless driving.

DeVries reportedly told officers he was sleepy.

Police said they ordered DeVries to stop driving, but were ignored.

After the crash, Allegan County deputies ticketed DeVries for careless driving.

Lance Is Telling His Side

the Cathlamet bank by the Comptroller of the Currency.

Lance has said that the subject of these restrictions was discussed in a general way when he called on regional banking administrator Donald Tarleton in Atlanta last November 22, but both men have said that Lance did not ask for the restrictions to be lifted.

Lance, a long-time friend of President Carter, worked for several hours in his office Wednesday night, preparing a statement for the committee. He arrived home after midnight and told waiting reporters his mood was "very good."

In the last week, as the congressional panel heard testimony from a variety of witnesses, Lance steadfastly maintained that he did no wrong in his years as a banker.

But the committee also heard allegations from government investigators that the banks Lance headed were inefficiently and improperly run, that Lance and his wife overdraw their accounts in six figures and that the Georgian had used banked aircraft for private or political use.

Meanwhile, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, ranking Republican on the committee, said he was satisfied with an apology from Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell.

Powell, obviously not expecting to be identified as the source, told the Washington bureau of the Chicago Sun-Times he had heard rumors that Percy had used a Bell & Howell airplane during his 1972 re-election campaign.

The Sun-Times reported the tip as coming from Powell and earlier Percy's denial. Percy, who used to be chairman of the board of Bell & Howell, said the corporation never even owned an airplane.

Powell was quoted as saying he was not offering the tip to get back at Percy for his criticism of Lance.

After he was revealed as the source of the story, Powell said he had made "a dumb mistake" and apologized to Percy over the telephone. Percy said he told Powell, "You have expressed your regret and I accept that."

Despite Percy's soft words, the incident appeared to have at least temporarily damaged the administration's standing on Capitol Hill.

"It makes me wonder about their frame of mind as I used to wonder about the frame of mind at the Nixon White House," said Baker.

Bridgman-Lake Water Hookup Study Slated

POLICE ROUNDUP Patrolman Reports Shattering Episode

A window of a St. Joseph police squad car was shattered Wednesday morning when a handcuffed woman in the car's rear seat repeatedly kicked it, according to Patrolman William Beaudette.

Beaudette said the woman was handcuffed and placed in the squad car about 10 a.m. after she allegedly screamed profanity at officers investigating a report of a suspicious woman near the intersection of Lake boulevard and Ship street.

While enroute to police headquarters, the woman began kicking the right rear door window of the car, smashing it, Beaudette reported.

The woman was taken to Riverwood Mental Health clinic after officers learned she had previously been a patient there, according to Beaudette.

No charges were reported filed against the woman.

Sewer Hookups Okayed In Hartford Township

HARTFORD — Hartford township residents who live near the projected path of new Hartford city sewer lines will have a chance to hook into the sewer, according to a resolution adopted by the Hartford township board last night.

The board adopted a restrictive resolution that permits the city to construct some of its sanitary sewer lines in the township.

But included in the resolution were stipulations that township residents whose properties are adjacent to the lines be allowed to hook into the system and pay the same rates as city users, and that any township roads torn up due to sewer construction be restored afterwards.

The city earlier this month broke ground for the $2.5 million sewer construction project that includes a sewer plant and interceptor lines. The plant is to be located off Pinery road in the township, northwest of the city.

Also last night, the board set a public hearing for Oct. 25 on township zoning changes suggested by the township planning commission. The hearing is to

Allegan Hunting Three Robbers

ALLEGAN — Allegan county authorities continued their search today for three masked men who reportedly took $180 at gunpoint from a Hopkins area man late last night, according to the Allegan county sheriff's department. Deputies said Joseph L. MacDonald told them that three men entered his home on 18th street south of Hopkins about 11:45 last night, took $180 from him before they tied him up, and then fled from the area in an auto. MacDonald, 24, an unemployed bachelor living alone at the house, was not injured, deputies said. Deputies said they were told that all three intruders were armed with shotguns and wore masks. They said the victim described the robbers as being white, small in build and between 18 and 20.

Gobles Learns Of $1,700 Bill

GOBLES — Gobles owes the Michigan Power Co. $1,700 in surcharges for street light power dating back to last year, the city commission here was told last night.

Power company officials told the commission that a 55 per cent surcharge that started in October, 1976, would have to be paid despite a contract which does not spell out the charge.

Gobles Mayor Gilbert Gehrke said this morning that the city was under the impression that because it had a contract it did not have to pay the surcharge. The contracted cost of street lighting electricity is $329 per month, Gehrke said.

The surcharge, which was included on the power company's bill to the city each month, amounted to $192 a month. "We ignored it because we had a contract," Gehrke said.

Gehrke said today "it's got to be paid, but we don't like it." He said the city has a 10-day grace period in which to pay the surcharge. He indicated city officials would be investigating further during that period.

In other action, the commission voted to charge the city fire board $1,200 for rental of the fire station, an increase of $400 a year over last year's rent. The commission indicated the hike was due to increased fuel and maintenance costs.

The commission agreed to request city residents who didn't fill out a questionnaire on a proposed sewage system to do so at the city clerk's office. The city sent out 365 questionnaires asking if residents wanted a sewer system installed. Those returned showed 55 favored the system and 46 did not.

The commission agreed to purchase street name and safety signs from the state highway department at a cost to the city of $1,200.

Three four-year terms on the commission are up for election in the November general election. All three men holding the expiring seats indicated last night they do not plan to seek re-election.

Seats expiring are those of Mayor Gehrke, and commissioners Timothy Peters and Zane Burris. Petitions for the seats are to be filed by Oct. 8.

Raises Granted In Silver Creek

DOWAGIAC — The two Silver Creek township board trustees who were refused raises by voters at the annual township meeting in April, got their raises last night.

The township board voted to raise the salaries of Trustees Ruth Sarabyn and Stanley Sarabyn from $20 per meeting to $30 per meeting.

At the April annual meeting, township residents approved a salary increase for Township Clerk Nellie Price but rejected salary boosts for the supervisor, treasurer and the two trustees.

Mrs. Sarabyn is Sarabyn's sister-in-law.

In other action last night, the township board adopted a series of three resolutions that will make the township eligible for federal sewer construction loans and grants.

The resolutions are also the first step in making certain township areas eligible for federal flood insurance.

Air Force Crash Kills 20

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 persons aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from any bunker containing flammable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzanita Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its take off from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Hertler has been working as the township's zoning administrator without a contract since April. He is also doing similar work for Pokagon township in Cass county and Berrien county's Berrien township.

Township Clerk Nellie Price said today that the township is "very happy" with Hertler's work and wants to make sure that it is able to keep him.

The contract will be resubmitted to Hertler for approval.

The board also accepted the resignation of Jack Gould as the township's liquor inspector and appointed Gerald Small as a township constable to replace him.

The board also voted to spend $52 in buy a tape recorder and tapes so that township meetings can be recorded on a trial basis.

Wine Festival's Hoping For Vintage Year

BY DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — With both a new location and hopes of putting a gleam back on its tarnished image, Paw Paw's 10th annual Grape and Wine Festival will be held this weekend. The majority of the activities have been moved from the village to the Van Buren Youth fairgrounds, nine miles west of here. The switch came after the village council voted following last year's festival to deny the use of village facilities for the event.

In taking the action, the council expressed concerns about public safety and "moral decay." Festival backers claimed that Police Chief George Fadel had overstated the severity of problems with public intoxication and vandalism.

Past festivals have drawn crowds estimated at anywhere between 30,000 and 75,000. We've budgeted for 20,000 but are planning for up to 40,000 depending on the weather," said Gary

Verdries, festival director. "If it's (attendance) down, it won't be because of the move, but because of some of the misinformation that's gone out."

Verdries said he felt that the village council's action, which drew national publicity, was widely interpreted to mean that the festival was being cancelled. "It (news accounts) made it sound as if everybody in town was participating in unlawful and immoral conduct," he added.

Verdries said that he agreed with village officials that the festival had become too big for Paw Paw, noting that alternatives to the location were being considered even before the council's action. "It was mainly a facilities problem," he said. "The activities themselves were fine, but they were inappropriate for the area they were in."

The fairgrounds, Verdries said, will provide more parking and better traffic control. Wine tasting will also be limited to one of the buildings. The fairgrounds are on CR-681 between Hartford and Lawrence. Other than the location change, the festival will follow much the same format it has used in past years. Frontenac, Warner Vineyards, and Vendramino Vineyards in Paw Paw, and Bronte Wine Co. of Keeler will offer tours and wine tasting throughout the weekend. St. Julian Wine Co. of Paw Paw is sponsoring its own "Festival of the Harvest."

Ongoing events will include an arts and crafts show, carnival and rides, and tours of the John Morrison farm on Red Arrow highway, 2½ miles east of Paw Paw. The fairgrounds will open at 5 p.m. Friday with a performance by the Van Buren Folk Dancers. The group will repeat its show at 4 and 7 p.m. Saturday and 4 p.m. Sunday.

Other Friday activities include performances by local folk-rock groups at 7 p.m., a local dance group at 8 and 8 p.m., grape stomp at 7:30 p.m., a polka party at 8 p.m., and belly dancing exhibition at 9 p.m. A magic show will also be presented at 8 p.m. both Friday and Saturday nights in the auditorium of the Michigan Avenue school.

Saturday's 40-unit parade at 1 p.m. will follow a noon concert by the Marcellus high school band. A grape stomp contest is scheduled for 11:30 a.m., a short play at 11 a.m., a teenage dance at 8 p.m., and performances by several local folk singers throughout the day.

Non-fairgrounds events Saturday include a motorcycle rodeo at the Paw Paw conservation club, and the fifth annual United States Twirling association contest at Paw Paw high school. On Sunday, a celebrity grape stomp is scheduled for 12:30 p.m., a performance by Sing Out Kalamazoo at 3 p.m., a turtle derby at 3:30 p.m., and square dancing at 4 p.m. Several local singing and dance groups will also perform during the afternoon.

Mrs. Mann Not Involved

BY TOM BRUNDRETT
State Editor

HARTFORD — Hartford Mayor Wayne Nelson Wednesday issued a statement to clarify the position of Treasurer Lucille Mann in connection with an investigation being conducted in Hartford by the state Treasury department.

The statement said: "The two prior investigations of the state treasurer relating to financial irregularities (in the city's finances) have not indicated any wrongdoing by Lucille Mann, the city treasurer."

"In addition, there is absolutely no indication at the present time of any wrongdoing by Mrs. Mann in connection with the present investigation relating to possible shortages in December, 1975, stemming from winter tax collections."

"Mrs. Mann was, in fact, on vacation and out of the city offices during the period in question."

"I feel this statement is necessary so that the citizens can have confidence in their city treasurer."

Nelson's statement was issued in the wake of a report at Monday night's city council meeting that the state Treasurer's office had been called to investigate a shortage in the winter tax money collected by the city in December, 1975.

Nelson said Tuesday the shortage appeared to be in the $800 range. The probe was requested after two taxpayers reported they had paid their taxes in December, 1975, but were notified later by Van Buren county that the taxes were still due.

Nelson said the first probe by the treasury department was in January, 1976, and involved check transactions and the city's cash drawer. The second probe came in June, 1976, and related to 1974 winter tax collections.

Reimbursements called for from the 1976 probes were later made by Mrs. Jewell Story, then city clerk, according to Nelson.

ALLEGAN FAIRGROUNDS: Allegan county fair at fairgrounds in Allegan moved into seventh day of schedule today with fair parade on tap. Kalamazoo river is seen curving around fairgrounds in background. Fair runs through Saturday. Parade was held at 2:30 p.m. and included 40-horse hitch. Friday's schedule includes lightweight horse pulling starting at 9:30 a.m.; harness racing, draft horse hitch contest and mule team contest, in afternoon; and Myron Floren shows at 7 and 9 p.m. Fair officials said attendance Wednesday was 19,890, boosting total official count for nine-day fair so far to 94,992. Officials said no formal attendance record was kept Tuesday because of rain. (Adolph Hann aerial photo)

Saugatuck OKs .7 Mill

SAUGATUCK — Saugatuck school district voters yesterday gave overwhelming approval to a .7-mill school property tax levy for roofing and paving repairs. Voters passed the issue, 151 to 33. A second question on the ballot, which sought to set up a building and site fund for the levy, was also approved, 151 to 34. According to Suplt. Wayne Kreuger, the two-year levy will generate about $16,000 per year. The funds will be used for the repairs at the Douglas elementary school, he said. Kreuger earlier had indicated that the levy would not increase the total school tax millage rate of 32.09 mills. He said the board had voted to reduce the district's debt retirement millage from six mills to 5.3 mills through state aid funding. The district currently levies 28.69 mills for operational purposes.

Swimmers Still Hunted

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Boats from St. Joseph and Michigan City Coast Guard stations continued searching Lake Michigan off Berrien county this morning looking for two Beverly Shores, Ind., men who left three friends on a stranded speedboat Tuesday afternoon to swim for shore.

A 16-hour search of the lake yesterday by boats and helicopters failed to turn up any signs of Steve Peak, 22, and Michael Dawn, 23, both of Beverly Shores, the Coast Guard said.

The three Michigan City teenagers who remained on the boat, which ran out of gas Sunday, were reunited with their families yesterday morning after their boat washed ashore near Michigan City after drifting on the lake for more than 56 hours.

Chief William Johnson of the St. Joseph Coast Guard station said the search for the two men today has shifted north because of lake and wind currents. A 40-foot boat from the St. Joseph station began searching north from the St. Joseph piers at sunrise this morning, he said, and a Michigan City boat is working south of that area. A helicopter from Chicago is also continuing in the search, he said.

The temperature of Lake Michigan off St. Joseph this morning was 56 degrees, according to the St. Joseph Coast Guard station.

The three Michigan City teenagers who drifted ashore yesterday morning are Lester Heichel, 17; Wayne Lewis, 17, and Dennis Brockenshire, 18.

Heichel said Peak and Dawn jumped off the boat to swim for shore Tuesday afternoon when the five boaters sighted land for the first time since they ran out of gas Sunday night. Both men were wearing life preservers, said Heichel, who estimated they were about two miles offshore when the pair left to swim for shore.

Heichel said the five had not had any food since they left Michigan City Sunday night and Peak suffered cramps almost immediately when he jumped into the water. Dawn tried to help Peak, Heichel said, and both men drifted away from the boat.

CASS HISTORIC SITE: Cass county officials are shown unveiling sign that designates Cass county courthouse as state historic site. This building, in Cassopolis, was erected in 1899 and was third building to serve as county's courthouse. It houses district, probate and circuit courts today, with other county offices in addition built last year. Unveiling marker in ceremony Tuesday were Lee Dodd, chairman of county historical society (left) and Herman Saitz, county board of commissioners chairman.

Seven Towns Eye Own Power Plant

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — The Paw Paw village council held an informational meeting last night to review proposals for providing the village with new sources of electric power.

Under the planning, one possibility would be for the village to join with six other communities to build a power plant to serve the seven.

The plan for the possible sources was developed by Campbell and DeBoe, an engineering consulting firm from Toledo.

Communities involved in the study have banded together to form an organization to study the feasibility of the project called the Michigan South Central Power Supply Group. They include Paw Paw, Niles, Marshall, Coldwater, Hillsdale, Union City, and Portland.

Harry Bush, Paw Paw's superintendent of public works, said the plan under consideration would use a 100 megawatt power plant, to be built near Tekonsha, south of Battle Creek. To generate electric power for the seven communities.

The combined power needs of the towns are estimated at between 70 and 80 megawatts. Cost of the plant, which could be completed by 1982, has been put at just over $60 million.

Bush said that under the plan, the participating communities would form an authority to oversee operations and issue revenue bonds for construction of the plant. He said the Tekonsha site was chosen because it is close to railroad lines which could supply coal for fuel, and is near existing Consumers Power lines which could be used to transmit the electricity.

Bush said the main advantage of the plan is that it would guarantee its members a future source of electricity. He said he did not expect it to be any cheaper, at least initially, than the electricity now supplied to the village by Michigan Power Co.

Bush stressed that the council arrived at no firm decision and will continue to study the plan and other alternatives. He said Paw Paw was one of 17 communities involved in an ongoing power study conducted by the state and is also investigating the possibility of buying electricity from Grand Haven.

One reason the study was undertaken was because of the uncertainty over supply by current electric firms in the future.

Cass Store Is Held Up

CASSOPOLIS — Two men wearing nylon stocking masks robbed a party store about two miles south of here last night and escaped with $250 in cash, Cass sheriff's deputy said. Deputies said the robbery occurred about 7:30 p.m. at the Hartmann party store, M-62 at Osborn road. One of the men held a shotgun on employee Pamela Stauffer, 18, Dowagiac, while the other took the cash from the register, deputies reported. The pair then forced Miss Stauffer to lie on the floor while they made their getaway in a car believed driven by a third person. There was no description of the car reported. Deputies said the robbery remains under investigation.

BH Will Have Lots Of Incentive Against Fruitport

Benton Harbor's football team has a great deal of incentive this week.

The Tigers travel Friday to Fruitport, hoping to run their record to 2-0. The last Benton Harbor team which started that strong was the 1963 club which finished 8-1 and won the LMAC.

As if that wasn't enough incentive, Benton Harbor has more. The Tigers have never beaten Fruitport in three meetings.

The fact that we have never beaten Fruitport has really given the kids incentive," Tiger coach Paul Bergan says. "The kids really want to get them. There seems to be real enthusiasm for this game."

"We're really looking forward to it. In the past the kids have had a defeatist attitude. But this year the kids feel they can go in there and hit with anybody."

Fruitport defeated Benton Harbor 24-0 in 1974, 12-6 in 1975 and 13-8 a year ago. In Tom Holden's seven years as coach the Trojans have rolled up an impressive 55-9 record, including last Friday's 12-0 win over Coopersville.

Big fullback Jim Larson (5-10, 185) carries the offensive load. Larson lugged the ball 40 times for 200 yards last Friday.

Strong tackles Eric Drake (6-5, 230) and Gary Kerstling (5-11, 231) anchor the offensive line.

Benton Harbor limited the Kalamazoo Central ground game to just 10 yards in last Friday's 8-0 victory.

"We're going to have to block better than Kalamazoo could do," Holden says. "If we can block them, we'll move the ball. If we can't, we're going to have trouble all night."

Holden is impressed with Benton Harbor's running game, which rushed for 214 yards against Kalamazoo. Maverick Burton totaled 91 yards and fullback Duane Tillman added 74.

"We feel we have to stop (Andrew) Hurst, Burton and Tillman," Holden says. "And that's no easy job. We're going to have to tackle them, their quarterback. We can't let him run wild."

Bergan was especially pleased with Tillman's running Friday.

"Duane gives us the added punch we need," he says. "He's 6-2, 200 pounds, but he's quick and the opposition has to respect him. The problem is that he was a tackle last year and is just learning to be a fullback."

"He's going to get better each week. He's the key to our offense. Now the opposition has to cover all three parts of the option play."

Bergan is hoping for another superb defensive effort. The Tigers held Kalamazoo to just 79 yards in total offense.

"It's going to take another super game from the defense," he says. "Our strength is defense and we can't let them control the ball."

"We want to force them to punt and keep them in poor field position. We need to control the ball offensively and force them to do things they're not used to doing."

Bergan plans to throw the ball more against Fruitport. Hurst was three of three for 32 yards against Central.

Cornerback Gene Hines will miss the Fruitport game with a torn muscle in his leg. Either Larry Reese or Keith Davis will fill in.

NINTH-INNING SHOT NIPS RED SOX

Jackson HR Lifts Yanks

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batters build runs a base at a time. Home run hitters, an impatient lot, deliver them in four-base clusters.

Reggie Jackson is no bunter. In the ninth inning of a scoreless game between the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox, Jackson was flashed the bunt sign to advance Thurman Munson to second base. He squared around on the first and third pitches, but didn't offer at tosses by Boston's Reggie Cleveland.

"I had to talk to (third base coach Dick) Howser about the sign because I don't bunt often enough to know it," said Jackson.

Unable to gently lay the ball down, Jackson worked the count to 3-2 and instead laid out the Red Sox, smacking his 26th home run of the season and giving the Yankees a 2-0 victory Wednesday night.

The triumph, the Yankees' second in two games in a crucial three-game series with the Red Sox, lifted New York 3½ games ahead of third-place Boston in the American League East.

Baltimore, with 8-5 and 4-2 victories over Toronto, sneaked into second place, 2½ games behind New York.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit swept a pair from Cleveland, 5-3 and 2-1; Kansas City beat Oakland twice, 5-2 and 4-0; Minnesota blanked the Chicago White Sox 7-0; Texas edged California 2-1, and Milwaukee beat Seattle 8-5.

Lee May belted a two-run homer, his 23rd, in the first game and smacked a run-scoring double in the nightcap, pacing the Orioles to their sixth and seventh straight victories.

The Royals continued to make a mockery of the race in the AL West, winning their 13th and 14th straight games, a club record and a major league high this season. The Royals' magic number now is nine; they lead second-place Chicago by nine games.

Dennis Leonard hurled an eight-hitter in the second game and Jim Colborn scattered seven hits but needed relief help from Larry Gura in the final two innings of the opener.

Texas right-hander Doyle Alexander stopped California on three hits and became the winningest Ranger pitcher this season with 15 victories against 10 losses.

Texas' John Ellis drilled his third home run of the year in the third inning.

A sacrifice fly by Ron LeFlore in the 10th inning gave the Tigers a doubleheader sweep. The Tigers had ended a six-game losing string in the opener, in which Tim Corcoran doubled home two runs and Ben Ogilvie pitched out four hits, including a solo homer.

Bob Sykes (5-5) gave up just six hits in 7½ innings to pick up the first-game victory. Bruce Taylor gained his second save of the season with 1½ innings of no-hit relief.

John Hiller (7-14) picked up the second-game win in relief of starter Milt Wilcox, who gave up Cleveland's only run in his 7½-inning stint.

Jason Thompson drove in his 100th run of the season in the opener, becoming the first Tiger to reach 100 RBIs since Willie Horton in 1966.

Dave Goltz checked the White Sox on seven hits for his 18th victory as the Twins snapped a six-game losing streak with a 7-0 triumph.

Goltz, who has lost nine games, didn't allow a runner to reach second until the fifth inning when Chicago loaded the bases with one out. But a pair of forceouts ended the threat.

The Twins, who hadn't won in six previous outings this season in Chicago, got three runs in the first after two men were out. Ron Carew singled to extend his hitting streak to 11 games and went to third on Dan Ford's single. Craig Kusick then singled to score Carew and send Ford to second. Both runners moved up on a wild pitch by loser Ken Kravec, 8-8, and came home on Bob Gorinski's broken bat single.

Minnesota added its other four runs in the eighth.

Sixto Lezcano's three-run homer in the fifth highlighted a Milwaukee comeback that enabled the Brewers to wipe out a 5-0 Seattle lead. Reliever Eduardo Rodriguez allowed Seattle just four hits over the final 7½ innings.

Yankees' Family Feuds Lost In Rush For Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

"We're going to win the pennant. I've never doubted that," Billy Martin said. "I felt that way last April. I feel that way now."

The scrappy little manager of the New York Yankees was a picture of contentment and confidence as he sat in the swivel chair of his Yankee Stadium office, puffing on a pipe, his feet propped on a desk.

The clouds of controversy that had swirled around his head in mid-season had evaporated. The Yankees had drawn first blood in the important showdown series against the Boston Red Sox. The infantile family feuds somehow had gotten lost in the mad rush toward another World Series.

"This is the kind of team that rises to the big occasion," Martin said. "It is at its best when the going is toughest."

The combative one-time Yankees infielder said he did not underestimate the Red Sox. "They always come out swinging" — but felt the schedule was the ally of the Yankees.

"The Red Sox have six games left with the (Baltimore) Orioles," he said. "That's the rub. I look for them to split those games 3-3." The Yankees meet Boston for the last two times next Monday and Tuesday at Fenway Park.

The telephone on Martin's desk rang repeatedly. Someone asking about tickets. A private call ("I'll call you later"). A business call. No call from owner George Steinbrenner.

"You seem to have run out of crises," someone said.

Martin laughed. "The last thing I want is another crisis," he said. "I want to keep everything nice and quiet."

Reggie Jackson is nodding politely now to Thurman Munson. Mickey Rivers is hitting game-winning home runs instead of being accused of loafing. And Graig Nettles, who rarely takes batting practice, is taking vicious cuts in the cage.

Martin's office, just off the players' dressing quarters, is a spacious room ringed with cushiony sofas and chairs, cluttered with baseball memorabilia, lined with book shelves.

A giant fish is mounted behind the manager's desk, a token of his love and, close by a huge poster of Charles Schultz' Charlie Brown, standing morosely on the pitcher's mound under an umbrella in a pouring rain. The inscription: "Thought for the Day: A smile makes a lousy umbrella."

On one shelf is a marker reading: "Billy Martin No. 1" and hanging on the wall nearby a poster defining what it calls, "Company Rules — Rule 1. The boss is always right; Rule 2. If the boss is wrong, see Rule 1."

A photo of a younger Casey Stengel in a Dodgers uniform and a color sketch of an older Stengel, doffing his cap, attest to Martin's devotion to his craggy old boss.

"No, I haven't patterned my philosophy as a manager after Casey," Billy said. "Everybody has his own way of managing. But I learned a lot from Casey as I did from all the managers I played for."

"One thing I learned. That was never to say 'I' when I meant 'we,' never say 'my ball club' instead of 'our ball club.'"

"Also that playing is more fun than managing — and pays a heck of a lot better, too."

Shamrocks' Title Defense Task Gets Tougher

The Red Arrow title defense road seemed like a rocky one for Berrien Springs before the season started — and now it looks to be even rougher.

Coach Dick Bartz will be without two key performers when the Shamrock gridders open the league season Friday night by hosting Watervliet.

Lake Michigan Catholic, the coach's preseason pick for number one, starts off at Eau Claire, Hartford travels to Galien and Bridgman hosts New Buffalo in other Friday night encounters.

Berrien Springs will be without the services of junior fullback Brad Layman and senior defensive safety Brad Dixon. Layman is out for the season with a knee injury and Dixon will miss the next two or three games with a severely sprained ankle. Both injuries occurred in the 31-8 loss to Cassopolis last Friday night.

That leaves senior Tom Michienzi as the only experienced fullback. Joey Hager will start at the tailback slot.

"Tom will just have to run a little bit more this week," comments Bartz. "After watching the films, we were satisfied with his performance. We think he will get much better as the season goes along.

"Against Watervliet, we feel we have to stop their basic stuff and force them to throw. Watervliet has a good quarterback. Hutchinson (Jim) executes very well."

If the Panthers are forced to go to the air, the Shamrock secondary of Roy Freeman, Ken Stuckey, Arthur Hernandez and Ron Herford will get a test. Herford will probably replace Dixon.

Panther head coach Doug Borsum was happy with his team's defensive effort in the win over North Muskegon.

"I was especially pleased with the cornerback play and the pass coverage in general," he beams.

But Jeff Parker's play would put a gleam in any coach's eye. The junior, who won the Red Arrow high jump and high hurdles track titles, intercepted two passes, with one going for a TD, and scored another six-pointer on a pass from Hutchinson.

"We knew all along Parker could be a heck of a defender with his range, jumping ability and size," Borsum declares. "We were just waiting to see it happen."

Catholic's Terry Rose, who will be coaching his 100th game, was very happy with his team's defensive play in the 13-7 Laker win over Coloma. But Eau Claire will pose problems, he indicates.

"Eau Claire has three running backs that are very quick," he states. "They have nice size...they can go inside or outside and do it very well."

Rose also thought the Beavers were well conditioned. "I felt they outplayed LaLumiere in the third and fourth quarters, and LaLumiere was bigger than Eau Claire."

The factor which coach Tom Ferry will have to cut down on is penalties. The Beavers had over 65 yards assessed against them in the first quarter.

Laker quarterback Mike Masini showed a good passing arm in the Coloma victory. "We were hoping Mike could throw that good this early in the season," Rose states. "He was exceptionally sharp and a couple of times he burned a few fingers. He has been working to ease up when he has too and to throw it hard when forced to."

Hartford coach Bob Teske has a problem similar to Rose's — offensive line consistency.

"That was our biggest problem against Lawrence," Teske states. "We would move the ball well for four of five downs and then nothing, and that hurt us the other night."

Teske also says that he may open the offense up. "Greg Winans is a much better thrower than we have had in the past, and I hope to do more of that."

Bridgman has beaten New Buffalo seven straight times, outscoring the Bisons 182-21.

The Red Arrow didn't do badly against outside foes in last week's season opener. The league won five of eight games — with two of them shutout victories.

Wolverine Powers Square Off Friday

Last week South Haven turned back an old nemesis...this week the Rams will have a chance to sidetrack an old Wolverine arch-rival.

The Rams, who topped Vicksburg 26-12 in their opener, kick off their home schedule Friday night by taking on Plainwell.

South Haven and the Trojans have dominated the conference football championship trophy the last several years with the pair sharing the crown last fall as well as in 1974 and 1971.

The Rams' Gary Steudle has forged a brilliant 41-11-0 mark at South Haven but his teams have yet to win a Wolverine crown outright. Friday night the Rams could take a giant step to remedy that situation as a win would saddle Plainwell with two setbacks in the league and put South Haven in the driver's seat.

"Plainwell is always the team to beat," notes Steudle. "If you beat Plainwell you are going to be heard from. They always play well against us. What we need Friday is to eliminate our mental mistakes and play good team football."

South Haven, which hasn't won a outright title since 1966, and the Trojans were picked one-two in a preseason poll by league coaches.

"Plainwell isn't as big as they have been in the past but they're quick," voices Steudle. "They throw the ball quite a bit and this Schmitt (Dave) is a pretty good passer."

Schmitt threw for 125 yards in Plainwell's opening 23-8 loss to Three Rivers. Joe Perk picked up 58 yards in the game while Jeff Foreman caught four passes for 95 yards. Paul Sugas, the Trojans' fastest back, was injured in the opener and wouldn't be available for the Rams game.

"We knew South Haven would be strong...they have the horses," says Jack Steudle, a fixture at Plainwell since 1945. "I would say this South Haven team is on the same level or better as any teams they've had there. Material-wise they're loaded but I don't know if they have put everything together yet."

"We had some bad breaks against Three Rivers, although Three Rivers certainly has a fine club. We can play a lot better than we did. I hope we can put everything together Friday otherwise we could get knocked out of it (race) early."

South Haven pounded out 401 yards last week despite making some key mistakes. Perry Palanca, Shelby Gamble and Mike Jones should provide the punch again, thanks to an offensive line which averages 220 pounds.

Covert will play his first varsity game in his new stadium Friday night when the Bulldogs host Faith Christian at 7:30.

"This is the first varsity game in Covert in five or six years," notes Covert Coach Bill Howe. "Before we had to play all our games on the road. This year we're playing seven of our nine games at home. We're real excited about it."

Faith Christian, located near Fruitport, will be making its varsity debut in the contest.

Motor Sports Meeting Monday

Motor sports enthusiasts will initiate a Bureau, Cass and Van Buren county chapter of the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) in a meeting to be held next Monday night, Sept. 18, in St. Joseph.

The kickoff session is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

Election of officers and selecting a name for the region will be topics of discussion, according to Michael Yore, of St. Joseph.

Yore said the regional organization will be the 101st such group in the nationwide SCCA. He said some 30 to 35 people have already expressed interest in joining the organization.

The group, and next Monday night's meeting, are open to all those interested in any aspect of motor sports, including racing, pit crew members, volunteer race officials and spectators. Four kinds of membership are offered. They are regular, spouse, associate and junior.

Immediate plans call for displays of sports cars at the Brick Alley, Fairplain plaza, Oct. 1 and 2, and at the Cook Nuclear plant in Bridgman on Oct. 15 and 16.

Day's Sanitation Beaten, 2-1

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — What was described as the biggest crowd in Midland sports history, 7,000 persons, turned out to watch as the field of teams in the American Softball Association national men's fastpitch tournament here was trimmed to six.

Wednesday's action saw two more of the original 20 regional champion teams eliminated, as York Barbell of York, Pa. lost to Peterbilt Western of Seattle, 9-2; and Flint AUL of Flint, Mich., was downed 5-2 by Super Auto of Napa, Calif.

In other games, last year's runnerup Home Savings of Aurora, Ill. downed the host McArdle Pontiac-Cadillac team of Midland 6-2 and Billard Barbell of Reading, Pa. edged Day's Sanitation Service of Pontiac, Mich. 2-1.

Meanwhile, ASA board members holding their annual meeting here named two top players as delegates to the U. S.

Olympic Committee. Should this country be selected as the site for the 1984 Olympics, ASA officials say, there is a good chance fastpitch softball will be included in the games for the first time.

The delegates are Garvey Sterkel of Aurora, Ill. and Carl Walker of Stratford, Conn.

The nine-day tournament wraps up here Saturday.

Ex-College Stars Among NFL Cuts

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
It is being proved again that the shut press clippings from a player's college days don't impress National Football League coaches.

Two former Heisman Trophy winning quarterbacks — Pat Sullivan and Steve Spurrier — have been dropped by NFL teams. Running backs Sonny Collins of Kentucky, Kermit Johnson of UCLA and Mike Adamie of Northwestern — former stars at major universities — were cut Wednesday.

Wide receivers Randy Vataha and John Gilliam, defensive end Bob Lurtsema, defensive back Billy Woolsey and fullback Mike Frankowiak were given new NFL contracts after getting the axe.

Sullivan, waived Wednesday by San Francisco, spent four years with the Atlanta Falcons before playing out his option and joining the Washington Redskins. He was cut by the Redskins and later the Chicago Bears before the 49ers gave him a tryout this year.

The 49ers also cut Johnson Wednesday, along with linebacker Rod Martin. They also placed linebacker Mike Baldassin and quarterback Steve DeBerg, acquired on waivers from the Dallas Cowboys, on the two-man taxi squad.

Adamie was released by the Chicago Bears to make room for Gilliam, who had a standout 10-year career with the Minnesota Vikings but was cut Wednesday by Atlanta, who signed him last year.

The Falcons cut five players, including Collins, running back Billy Pritchett and rookie receiver Shelton Diggs of Southern California.

Vataha was claimed on waivers by the Green Bay Packers from the New England Patriots, who cut him Tuesday. Vataha, who teamed for years with quarterback Jim Plunkett at Stanford and New England, replaces rookie offensive lineman Gerald Skinner of Arkansas on the Packers' active roster. Skinner was put on injured reserve.

Lurtsema, an 11-year veteran acquired by Seattle from Minnesota last year, was resigned by the Seahawks Wednesday after being cut Tuesday.

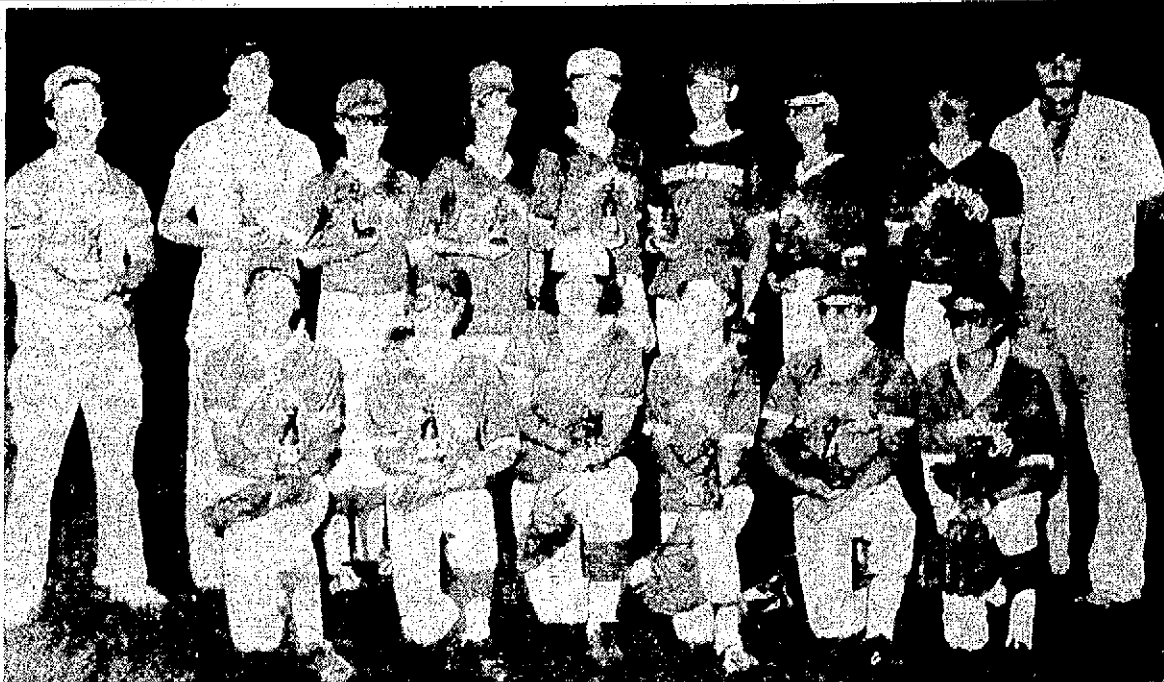

Seattle also waived veteran tight end John McMahon to make room for tight end John Sawyer, obtained Tuesday from the Houston Oilers.

Frankowiak, a third-year pro, was acquired by the Buffalo Bills from Denver. The Bills cut rookie running back Nate Jackson to make room for Frankowiak from Central Michigan.

Woolsey, who played for Dallas in 1975 and Seattle last year, was signed by the Cleveland Browns.

The New York Giants acquired defensive backs Beasley Reece and Ernie Jones on waivers, signed offensive lineman Jim Pietroz as a free agent and cut 1976 starting cornerback Bobby Brooks, defensive back Ronny Colbert and linebacker Otis Rodgers.

Bicycling Event Set Sept. 25

THREE OAKS — The fourth annual Apple Cider Century bicycling event, sponsored by the Three Oaks Spokes Bicycle Club, will be held here Sunday, Sept. 25.

The event, which is not a race, attracted 644 riders last year, despite a steady rain, and it is estimated that more than 1,000 may enter this time.

There will be three routes — a flat, 25-mile course for casual riding, a rolling, 50-mile route and a challenging 100-mile event.

Although the Apple Cider Century is not a race, riders must complete the 25 miles in four hours, the 50 miles in six hours and the 100 miles in 12 hours to receive a League of American Wheelman patch. Everyone will receive a Apple Cider Century '77 patch.

The event has a $6 fee, and registration will take place from 6 a.m. to noon on Sept. 25 at the St. Mary's Catholic Church hall. Cyclists may pre-register by getting an application blank from an area bicycle shop and mailing it to the Three Oaks Spokes, 303 E. Michigan, Three Oaks, Mich. 49128. If you can't find an application, send your entry fee to the Three Oaks Spokes, and they will fill out the entry form for you.

All entries will be served a breakfast of coffee, cider and donuts. There will also be cider, apples and water available along the routes. Finishing off the day will be a dinner of cheese, bread sticks, spaghetti, relishes, french bread, coffee, cider and apples.

SPORTS CAPSULES

SOCCER

TOKYO — Giorgio Chinaglia, Jadranko Topic and Nelsi Morais each scored a goal, leading the Cosmos of the North American Soccer League to a 3-1 exhibition victory over a Japanese All-Star team. The game was played before a crowd of 85,000, the largest audience to witness a soccer game in Japan.

GENERAL

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A proposal to ban racially-mixed sports in South Africa was rejected by an overwhelming majority at this week's Transvaal Provincial Congress of the ruling National Party.

Observers are divided on whether the move represents a "normalization" of South African sports or a concession to the international sports community, from which South Africa is isolated because of its racially separatist policies.

SJ Golfers Take Third

BATTLE CREEK — St. Joseph's golfers finished third in a Big Eight jamboree here Wednesday at Blder Park.

The Bears finished with 337 strokes. Battle Creek Lakeview won with 304 with Niles second at 313. Portage Central and Northern tied for fourth at 339. Loy Norrix and Kalamazoo Central tied for sixth at 345 while Holland was last with 348.

Patriots, Bengals Top Raider Challengers In AFC

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Oakland Raiders, as any schoolboy knows, are the class of the American Conference, right?

Wrong. Oh, any schoolboy in the Bay Area might say that. But there are a lot of youngsters in, say, greater metropolitan New England and regional Cincinnati and maybe a few other communities who will say ... well, who'll say that if you limit your thinking to the National Football League's defending champions.

The Raiders are unquestionably the best of the West — San Diego will probably step in to replace Denver as the division's distant runner-up this season — but New England and Cincinnati have every right to demand equal billing. The Patriots, the only team to beat Oakland last year, appear poised to outrun Baltimore for the Eastern title this time. And the Bengals, nosed out by Pittsburgh in last year's scramble to the top of the Central Division, should outclaw the Steelers this time.

It's tough predicting division winners — but that's a breeze when compared to trying to figure which team will be the AFC entry in Super Bowl XII next Jan. 15 in New Orleans' Superdome.

The Raiders may be the reigning champions and they may look every bit as good as they did when they demolished Minnesota for the title. But as any Super Bowl champion (except perhaps for Green Bay, Miami and Pittsburgh) will say, winning the title is the easy part. Defending it is a different story.

Before the AFC lines up for the playoffs, here's how the final regular-season standings will look:

WEST DIVISION

Oakland Raiders
San Diego Chargers
Denver Broncos
Kansas City Chiefs
Seattle Seahawks

EAST DIVISION

New England Patriots
Baltimore Colts

Miami Dolphins
Buffalo Bills
New York Jets

CENTRAL DIVISION

Cincinnati Bengals
Pittsburgh Steelers
Houston Oilers
Cleveland Browns

The numbers the Raiders throw around are terrifying: like Ken Stabler's league-high marks of 27 touchdown passes and Cliff Branch's 12 touchdown catches and Mark van Eeghen's 1,012 yards rushing ... and the two biggest numbers of them all: Oakland 32, Minnesota 14.

With Stabler and Branch and Van Eeghen and Dave Casper and old reliable Fred Biletnikoff on offense, with terrors like Otis Sistrunk, George Atkinson, Ted Hendricks and others on defense, with Al Davis continuing to bring diverse (and sometimes outcast) talent together, and with John Madden masterminding it all into the most successful team of the last decade, there's no sign of relief in sight for the rest of the West. San Diego, with some major additions, should have its first winning season since 1968. Quarterback James Harris and tight end Bob Klein have arrived, from Los Angeles with some solid credentials, fleet receiver Johnny Rodgers has arrived following stardom in Canada and Joe Washington, out all of 1976 with an injury, adds power to a backfield of potential 1,000-yarders Rickey Young and Don Woods.

Red Miller's big worry, as he starts his head coaching career in Denver, will be whether erratic quarterback Craig Morton has what it takes to keep the Broncos moving. If he can (and with help from Haven Moses, Riley Odoms and Otis Armstrong, he should), the Broncos again will be winners.

Kansas City still is rebuilding. So the Chiefs' big plus will be avoiding the cellar, thanks to the presence of Seattle. The Seahawks' defense still is a light year or two away from respectability.

If anyone considered the Pa-trials as flukes last year, this one will convince them that youth shall be served. With exciting Steve Grogan at quarterback, running on his own as well as running an offense starring runners Sam Cunningham, Don Calhoun and Andy Johnson, plus an occasional pass to Russ Francis, New England will continue to steamroller the opposition.

The same, of course, can be said of Baltimore, with quarterback Bart James, 1,200-yard rusher Lydell Mitchell and blazing receiver Roger Carr. The Colts' tougher schedule will be the deciding factor that leaves them No. 2 in the East. Miami has only partially recovered from the disastrous injuries of 1976. That, the high number of young players on defense, the emotional turmoil of players involved in a drug scandal and the absence of superstars of seasons past will keep the Dolphins mediocre. Buffalo has O.J. Simpson, worth a few victories on his own, but not much else. New head Coach Walt Michaels' New York Jets don't even have one superstar. Their defense is okay on third-and-two but can't handle a third-and-22.

Cincinnati gets the nod in the Central Division not only because of its improvement in the draft, but also because of slippage by Pittsburgh.

A standout-if-not-spectacular defense with players like Guy Bacon, Tommy Casanova, Jim LeClair and Lemar Parrish, consistent-if-not-flashy quarterback Ken Anderson, steady-if-not-sensational runners Boobie Clark and Archie Griffin and electrifying receiver Isaac Curtis team to give the Bengals the power to pass the Steelers, who managed to all but sneak into the playoffs last year with their extraordinary defense-led winning streak.

That defense, though, isn't what it used to be because of linebacker Andy Russell's retirement and cornerback Mel Blount's self-imposed exile. The offense still has the kick with Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier on the ground, Lynn Swann in the air and quarterback Terry Bradshaw leading the way.

Houston finally got around to strengthening its offensive line. That should perk up not only the Oilers' anemic rushing, but Dan Pastorini's passing. Cleveland, with a deceptive record a year ago via an easy schedule, will get shot down to the sub-.500 level.

DOWN AND OUT: Heavyweight boxer Ken Norton stands over challenger Lorenzo Zanon after knocking him out in the fifth round of a scheduled ten rounder Wednesday night at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. (AP Wirephoto)

Norton, Young Post Easy Tuneup Fight Victories

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Ken Norton continues to wonder whether Muhammad Ali will ever fight him again.

"I'll believe it only when I climb into the ring with him," said the No. 1 challenger from Los Angeles, who beat Ali once and then lost two disputed decisions to the current heavyweight boxing champion.

Norton, at 223 pounds, first has a date with Jimmy Young on Nov. 5, and the two tuned up with easy victories in nationally televised bouts at Caesars Palace here Wednesday night.

Norton says Ali wants to avoid him, but the heavyweight champion — who has a title fight on Sept. 29 against Earnie Shavers — has gone on record saying he would put his title at stake against the Norton-Young winner.

Young, a 213-pound Philadelphia, started slowly but picked up speed and boxed his way to a one-sided 10-round verdict over Jody Ballard, 205, of Houston.

Norton started even slower and got tagged a couple of times. But at the end of the fifth round he knocked out No. 10-ranked Lorenzo Zanon, an awkward 207-pounder from Milan, Italy. There were only two seconds left in the stanza when a left hook started Zanon on the way out, so the time goes as 3:08, eight seconds after the round's scheduled end.

Neither Young nor Norton said he was impressed by either other's showing, but each made a point of watching the other.

"I hope Norton doesn't think he's going to do the same thing to me," said Young after watching the kazo on television. "He doesn't hit hard enough to hurt me," said Norton of Young. "He can't punch, but he does have speed."

The two showcased in the Sports Pavilion of Caesars, where they'll fight for more than $1 million each in the Fall.

Detroit Still Mediocre

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

OPINION:

Year after year the safest prediction in pro football is that the Detroit Lions will finish with a 7-7 record.

Even if you're wrong, you're almost assured to be within a game of being right.

Mediocrity has been the Lions trademark in the National Football League for the last six years. In 1971 they had a 7-6-1 record. The next year they were 8-5-1. Then it was 6-7-1, followed by 7-7, another 7-7 and finally 6-8-0 last year.

That totals to 41-40-3.

There are plenty of optimists around who believe Detroit will finish second in the National Conference Central Division. What a joke. No way will that happen.

A 7-7 prediction looks pretty good again. As usual, the Lions will beat some of the best teams in the NFL. And then they'll turn around and drop decisions to teams that had no business

Cass Wins Jamboree

Cassopolis moved closer to the top by winning the third Blossomland conference golf jamboree Wednesday at Lake Michigan Golf Hills.

The Rangers finished with a 172 to outdistance Lakeshore and Buchanan, which wound up at 174. Edwardsburg was fourth (180) followed by Coloma (181), River Valley (184), Brandywine (201) and Dowagiac (213).

Cass now trails first-place Buchanan by just one point in the league race. The Bucks are first with 22 points, while the Rangers have 21. Lakeshore remains in contention with 19 and Coloma is fourth with 15. Edwardsburg is fifth, River Valley sixth, Brandywine seventh and Dowagiac eighth.

Scott Cowgill of Lakeshore and Buchanan's Chris Stockwell took medalist honors with 38. Dan Robinson of Coloma boasted a 40. Kris Munkis of Buchanan, Ken Willard of Cass, Edwardsburg's Tum Maddox and Fred Brecht of River Valley all posted 42s.

For the Rangers, Jim Loupey and Ron Haggin carded 43s and Tom Lowe had a 44.

beating them.

Tommy Hudspeth is in his first full year as coach under a three-year contract from owner William Clay Ford.

Hudspeth is an affable guy. I can't really say yet whether he's a good coach. He may be. But he just doesn't have the ingredients for a team that can challenge Minnesota or Chicago for the division title.

Inclusion of Tampa Bay in the division will do wonders for the Lions. They're bound to finish two matches above last, ahead of the expansion Buccaneers and the Green Bay Packers.

Actually, I see the Packers having difficulty finishing fourth ahead of Tampa Bay.

What Detroit doesn't have that it needs is: a title-caliber quarterback, an offensive line that can keep the likes of Chicago's Wally Chambers out of the backfield, a punter, a solid middle linebacker.

The Lions could also use someone from the NFL office who would instruct them on the rules of the game. They break just about all of them with incredible regularity — and not just in exhibition games. This season they'll lose three or four games because of routine offside penalties and, of course, the usual abundance of holding infractions.

Greg Landry is a brittle quarterback. He has never learned, it seems, to hit his secondary receivers and he more often than not doesn't hit open men. You'd think by now he'd be one of the league's best, but he never quite developed as anticipated.

Lynn Boden was a much-publicized No. 1 draft choice a couple years ago. He doesn't even start these days, but his offensive line teammates haven't done a very good job either the last two years. Some of Landry's difficulty obviously lies here.

There's no need to belabor the fact that Detroit's punting game has been abysmal since Hudspeth let Herman Weaver go last July. Nobody knows yet if newly-acquired Mitch Hoopes is the answer.

Jim Laslavie has never become a linebacker in the tradition of Joe Schmidt, Wayne Walker or Mike Laet. Detroit needs another one like that.

Assess? The Lions have them, but not enough to get them much above 7-7.

Work Aspect Weakest Link In Carter Welfare Plan

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Out here, in a day-care center 2,700 miles from the White House, welfare expert Willie Williams sees a wild card in President Carter's complicated welfare package.
 A seven-year welfare veteran who took a job as a day-care counselor and worked her way off the dole, Mrs. Williams says, "The jobs program will be a big help. But the pay is so low, sions with public officials, manpower experts, union leaders and welfare recipients from Seattle to Baltimore, San Francisco to New York.

 Carter's "program for Better Jobs and Income" would put 2½-million poor people to work in 1.4-million public service jobs, either full or part time. Federal welfare money would pay the salaries.
 But the political opposition and built-in pitfalls threaten higher than the minimum.

 Carter's plan would require an estimated seven million people who are eligible for welfare to work. Some will find low-paying, nongovernment jobs and will receive income aid from the government.
 Work requirements are attractive to many taxpayers who support the costly welfare system, but experts agree that jobs — not required participation — are what's needed to make the work plan succeed.

lot of cities would be totally screwed up."
 In some troubled cities — San Jose, Calif., Hartford, Conn., and Newark, N.J., for example — one of every five city workers is paid with CETA money. New York City will count 28,000 city-CETA workers by the end of this year. These workers are paid the prevailing wages; many do regular jobs and they are eligible to join a union.

 Local manpower officials will implement the jobs program, and they are worried about dozens of technical problems.

 "Their biggest fear is the spectre of two classes of employees working side by side at differing wages.

Mrs. Pines says: "Our labor staff and personnel people are shivering in fright of this thing."
 "It's unbelievably complicated," says Robert McPherson, manpower director in the Seat-le area. He predicts nothing but trouble with the city's 39 separate public employee unions. Despite their misgivings, the manpower community is willing to make a go of the Carter plan, should it pass Congress.

Here's No. 2 In Series

EDITOR'S NOTE: President Carter's proposed welfare reform program features a mandatory work requirement for "employable" recipients. Here, in the second of a three part series, is a look at the newest, and probably the most troublesome element in the Carter plan.

People will need welfare anyway. So what's the point?"
 The point, say Carter aides, is to hold down costs and to provide an incentive for public workers to seek jobs elsewhere.
 Hearings that began this month, administration officials will try to convince Congress that his jobs approach will work.
 Subpoena wages are just one of the problems that make the jobs plan the most troublesome element of Carter's package of expanded welfare coverage, tax refunds and work.

—Carter wants to move poor people out of the welfare system and into private jobs, but his program offers almost nothing to ease the transition. And in many areas, the private jobs just don't exist.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says this is the most serious weakness of the jobs plan.

—A huge welfare work force could hold down salaries for regular public employees doing similar work at higher wages. For this reason labor unions vigorously oppose minimum-wage welfare jobs.

—There is a serious danger that some government officials will replace regular employees, paid from local tax receipts, with "bargain basement" public service workers paid from the welfare fund. The process, Marshall's No. 2 worry, is called "substitution."

—As Mrs. Williams points out, the minimum wage won't allow the welfare work force to escape poverty without also drawing cash welfare benefits, especially in expensive cost-of-living areas like New York or California. Dependency on welfare will continue.

Typically, a mother or father heading a family of four would receive benefits of $1,444 to supplement the minimum wage of $5.12.

These are the key problem areas that surfaced in discus-chances for success as the program begins its journey through Congress.

In an interview, Secretary Marshall acknowledged the problems and said administration leaders already are working to correct them.

The work requirement would force "employable" recipients to accept a job if one is available.

But where other mandatory work plans failed, Carter's could succeed because he offers more than ultimatums — he also offers jobs. And there is a wage incentive for people to keep them.

Carter's plan, $8,800,000,000 dollars ($8.8 billion) earmarked to pay for the public service jobs.

The number of current public service jobs would be doubled at only a 49 per cent increase in cost because the current program for 725,000 jobs pays prevailing wages, usually much

If they come up empty, they are again eligible for a public service job. If one isn't available there is a safety net, a guaranteed income of $4,200 for a family of four.

Public service workers would be required to accept any private sector job that is offered, but the only dollar-and-cents incentive to find private employment is a tax refund of $54 a month. Even Labor Department experts say that might not have much impact.

The welfare work force will be working at a wide variety of low-skill jobs such as cleaning up public parks, emptying hospital bedpans and tending day-care centers.

Unions will seek assurances that regular workers, punching the timeclock at prevailing wages of $4 to $8 an hour in some cities, will not be replaced by low-paid members of the welfare work force.

The AFL-CIO says it will use its clout in Congress to defeat the low-pay provision and replace it with a prevailing-wage scale. And Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, says: "We stand together on this."

However, Baltimore manpower chief Marian Pines notes, "It would be next to impossible to move people out of public service jobs if we paid the prevailing wage. And it would cost a fortune."

The manpower officials believe one way around the thorny wage and substitution questions is to have welfare workers divide their time between public service jobs and training or job-search programs.

Another troublesome problem is that the Carter plan would phase out the current public service jobs, paying prevailing wages, established under Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. Mrs. Pines warns, "We've got big trouble if we lose this aid. A

WELFARE MOTHERS SAY: Cash Isn't The Answer

DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Suzanne Dankenbring says President Carter's welfare package won't bring back her man.

"My husband just walked out on me with 25 cents in my pocket," said the frail redhead, her eyes rimmed with crimson as she walked from an Ingham County welfare office.

In her left hand she clutched a bundle of welfare application forms. In her right hand was another in the day's chain of cigarettes. Her lined forehead made her look older than her 26 years. She and her two daughters were joining the ranks of literally millions of deserted families on welfare. Does she want her husband back? "I don't know," she answered quietly. Would more money help? "No."

Would a measure like the Carter plan help? "No," she says. "That's not what's going to do it for my family. It's him. It's my husband. He's got to work out a few things for himself."

The President is selling his plan partly on grounds that it is "profitable." It is true that his proposed combination of expanded benefits, public jobs and tax breaks eliminates current financial incentives for husbands to desert their wives and children, leaving them for the taxpayers to support.

But the findings of current research question whether these incentives really cause much family splitting. And Carter's plan does not do very much to cure what many social researchers, welfare administrators and welfare recipients say are the real causes of broken families on welfare: alcoholism, drug abuse, wife-beating and mental cruelty.

Experts interviewed by The Associated Press suggest new federal services, such as family counseling, are what is needed. In a recent message to Congress, Carter picked a hypothetical Michigan family of four, similar to Mrs. Dankenbring's, to illustrate the family breakup incentive which he proposes to remove. The fictional father worked at the minimum wage and had a total income, including food stamps and tax credits, of $3,922.

"But if the father leaves, the family will be eligible for benefits totalling $7,076," the President said. That monetary difference might cause a family to break up. But Mrs. Dankenbring's real life family and many others like it became part of the welfare problem because they broke up for other reasons.

For one thing, Mrs. Dankenbring said her husband worked for far more than the minimum wage, so no incentive to go on welfare existed. "He made $230 a week. We could make ends meet just fine on that and even had a little left over to go out every now and then," she said.

Other welfare mothers say money won't cure their marriages. Says welfare mother Pamela, who asked that her last name not be used: "I wouldn't want my husband back if he got more money on welfare as a whole family. My home is more stable without him here. I feel much better without him."

The present welfare system "doesn't appear to have an effect on family disruption," says Maurice MacDonald of the University of Wisconsin Institute for Research in Poverty.

He says the incentive to split up exists, but that it doesn't seem to motivate many people.

Blanche Bernstein, deputy commissioner of income maintenance in the New York State Department of Social Services, interviewed 600 welfare mothers in a 1975 study she prepared at the New School for Social Research. She found 12 per cent of those with broken families said their marriages or common-law relationships broke up because of "husband's inadequate earning capacity or financial irresponsibility." The remaining family breaks were caused by drugs, alcohol, extramarital affairs, physical and psychological abuse.

She said many welfare families need more than financial aid. "They've been marked by traumatic experiences, but we're not looking at these families to figure out how we can help," she said.

"We do nothing to help youngsters with their schooling, dropout problems or drugs. Also, there is a group of families who come into the welfare system as intact families," she said. "Every month, those families split up. No one was there to see what to do to prevent the split. That's the kind of service I would give. The Carter package doesn't deal with this at all."

The Carter plan proposes cash assistance and jobs for intact families, but "doesn't even look at the question of services," says John Dempsey, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

"We think of problems of battered spouses, money management assistance," he says. "We're spending well over $2 million on services. We think the federal government should expand its participation."

Isabel Sawhill of the Urban Institute in Washington, author of a 1975 study on the growth of families headed by women, found no hard evidence that the current system causes families to break up.

She and others do say welfare may increase the tendency toward instability by providing women and children with a source of income other than a husband's earnings. This would remain true under the Carter plan.

Even so, she and others say that sometimes it could be better for the children if bad marriages break up. "We know that family stability is associated with low income and with parental conflict and that both of these are generally poor environments for children," she says.

Carter's package would provide 1.4 million public job positions and job training, which social workers say might help the self-esteem of some welfare families, especially those with small children. This could ease the tensions of poverty that researchers blame for tearing families apart.

"The kids are often embarrassed when the other kids at school ask them what I do," said one welfare mother of five, who asked not to be identified.

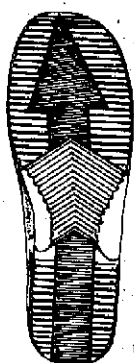

"It's really worse on the kids," adds welfare mother, Pamela. "They're not dressed as well as other kids in school whose parents work. But my kids don't know what money is anyway. Food stamps to them is money."

PBB Tests On Children Start Today At Muskegon

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Children, who were born on farms quarantined because of PBB contamination will undergo tests today and Friday by state health officials.

Doctors will try to determine whether the children suffered birth defects that may have been caused by polychlorinated biphenyl (PBB), a fire retardant chemical, accidentally mixed with livestock feed in 1973. Thousands of livestock were slaughtered because of the contamination.

A New York cancer expert told a U.S. House subcommittee last month that Michigan dairy farmers who ate food highly contaminated with PBB have lost much of their biological defense against infection and disease. Scientists also have found indications that PBB may contribute to a range of physical problems, including nervous disorders.

The children to be tested at two locations in Muskegon were born on farms that were quarantined between Sept. 1, 1973 and Dec. 31, 1975.

Also to be tested is a "control group" of children born to Michigan mothers who had no detectable PBB in their breast milk and children who recently moved to the state.

The state also has begun a two-year testing program at Big Rapids, with doctors studying 1,000 farm families to determine whether PBB has affected their health.

In testing the farm children, doctors will look for symptoms in the neuromuscular, nutritional, growth and infectious disease areas. They want to learn whether the children were breast-fed and what type of milk they drank after they were weaned.

At the same time, psychologists will take note of social and economic stresses that might have occurred within the families after the children's birth.

On another PBB front, two state legislators said Wednesday they will introduce a bill requiring all food imported to Michigan from other countries meet state chemical contamination guidelines.

The move by Sen. Richard Allen, R-Alma, a veterinarian, and Rep. Charles Mueller, R-Linden, a farmer, is in retaliation for a Canadian embargo of Michigan beef cattle products because of PBB.

SNAKE CHARMER? — Connie Mitchell works amid these slithery cobras but doesn't mind a bit. They are real, but stuffed, snakes from India and adorn the window of an office supply firm in Seattle. The cobras cost $50 each and sell well, a store employee said. "They're just conversation pieces," he said. (AP Wirephoto)

Halting Toxin Took Months

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — It took state officials more than six months to halt production of PBB although a scientist on the state payroll warned his superiors the chemical could match PBB as a health threat.

A memo warning of the hazards of PBB, a key building block for dozens of pesticides and fire retardants, went to top Department of Natural Resources officials July 27, 1976.

PBB, or polychlorinated biphenyl, was responsible for what many consider Michigan's worst chemical contamination when it accidentally was mixed with animal feed distributed in the state.

Dr. George Su, a chemist heading the department's technical services section, urged in the memo that "we take a very hard-nosed attitude toward any kind of PBB discharges." Su warned that vapors from the chemical are "extremely toxic to both human and wild life."

Within two days, Lee E. Jager, head of the department's Air Quality Division, used Su's report to recommend the department consider banning manufacture of PBB.

Jager's recommendations went to William G. Turney, chief of the agency's Bureau of Environmental Protection. But Turney said he cannot recall receiving the documents.

Turney did recall that Hooker Chemicals and Plastics Corp. of Montague, the only Michigan manufacturer of PBB, stopped making the chemical last February under pressure from state air and water quality officials.

Ford Widens Its Warranty

LIVONIA, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Company said today it is broadening its warranty coverage for 1978 cars and light trucks to include required service adjustments for 12 or 12,000 miles.

Included under the warranty are wheel balancing and alignment, fanbelt adjustment, carburetor and distributor adjustments, and window and hood alignment that are not caused by misuse or accidents.

of Stevensville, is new office secretary. She will be at the council office, 305 Lake boulevard, St. Joseph, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Rev. Bolin said the office formerly was open afternoons in fall and winter months and the reduced schedule is due to changes in staff functions and an effort to reduce costs. He said council services and activities are not being reduced.

Mrs. Marjorie Wilber is new coordinator of Camp Warren, handling all scheduling, information and billing for camp operations. She and her husband, Henry, live on the camp grounds north of the Twin Cities.

Rev. Bolin noted the council has a membership of 43 congregations and is observing its centennial year.

DAV Flower Sale Set This Weekend

Twin Cities area Chapter 17 of Disabled American Veterans will be selling forget-me-not flowers in several northern Berrien county communities tomorrow and Saturday, according to Herbert Nofke, chapter commander. The sale is held annually to raise funds for hospitalized veterans, child welfare and Americanism programs, Nofke said. Herb Lentz is chairman of the sale. The sales will be held in those communities where permission has been granted, according to Nofke. Those communities include Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Colon, Eau Claire, Watervliet, Fairplain Plaza and the townships of Sodus and Royall. All workers will be wearing either white hats, arm bands or lapel tags, Nofke said.

Rabin Is Due Back In U.S.-- Object: Money

BACK TO THE SOURCE: Yitzhak Rabin, who resigned as a candidate for a second term as head of the Israeli government last April after disclosures of illegal bank accounts in Washington, heads for the U.S. lecture circuit this fall. Why? In part to raise money to pay for thousands of dollars in fines levied against him and his wife for the bank accounts that are illegal under Israeli currency restrictions.

Q: What movies does President Carter like to see at the White House? — B. W., Nashville, Tenn.

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

A: The President has been described by one movie insider who should know as a fan of older vintage films. But word is that "Star Wars" was privately screened recently for a number of presidential aides and when President Carter found out the next day he asked why he wasn't invited.

GOTTA DANCE: Woody Allen gave a fund-raising party for a local politician at a Manhattan discotheque. The party was packed with celebrities but the star of the evening was Diana Ross. When she got up to dance, the floor cleared like magic and everyone just stood and watched. Diana, in a stunning red dress gyrated through one set and then left.

Q: I really liked Ted Knight as Ted Baxter on "The Mary Tyler Show." Any more TV in store for him? — K. C., Brooklyn.

A: Anyone as good as Ted, who can win two Emmys on as popular a show as Mary Tyler Moore, won't be away from prime time for very long. But what's on Ted's mind right now is his Broadway debut this fall in the comedy, "Some of My Best Friends," under that stage wizard Harold Prince, who always comes up with a winner.

Q: I was shocked to read in a recent issue of TV Guide that Dorothy Rodgers, wife of the great composer Richard Rodgers, was listed to appear on a talk show to discuss her "late husband's" career. I didn't know he died. — N. M., Boston.

A: Like Mark Twain's premature obituary, the death of Richard Rodgers was greatly exaggerated. What makes the situation rather bizarre is that Dorothy is extremely scrupulous concerning every word printed about her famous husband. One can only guess at her reaction on "reading" TV Guide's unfortunate error in the program listings of its Boston edition.

Q: What happened to the man in "The Diary of Anne Frank" who hid the family during the German occupation of Holland? — V. B., New Orleans.

A: Victor Kugler, now 77, and his wife, Laes, emigrated to Canada in 1955. The couple live in near-poverty in Toronto subsisting on small pensions from the Canadian and Dutch governments.

Q: My husband says Women's libber Betty Friedan was so devoted to her cause that she neglected her kids and they're all dropouts. Should I believe him? — J. H., Rochester, N.Y.

A: I wouldn't. The writer and feminist has raised three rather extraordinary children. Her oldest son is getting his doctorate in physics, her second son is a salmon fisherman in the Northwest and the youngest child, a daughter, has entered Harvard Medical School.

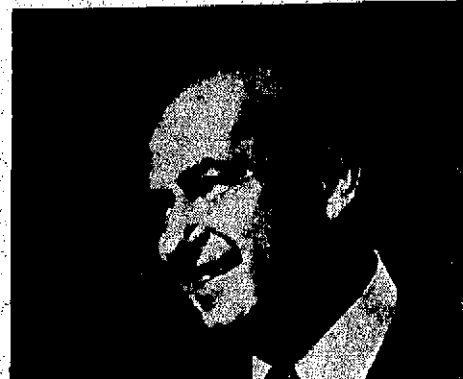

Robin Adams Sloan welcomes questions from readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams Sloan, care of this newspaper.

RODGERS: Very much alive

ROSS: Dancing at the party

RABIN: On the lecture circuit
